Cuban Exiles Start Skirmishes To Topple Castro

WASHINGTON (AP)—Skirmishes aimed at eventual overthrow of Fidel Castro have begun and the dictator of Cuba appears to be in trouble within his island fortress. But his regime is in no imminent danger of toppling.

The anti-Castro raids have not been spectacular affairs to this point. They were not intended to be. Still, the promised attacks on Cuba by various exile groups have not attained the proportions many had hoped for.

But for the Communist prime minister, the proclaimed war of the anti-Castro forces comes at a peculiarly bad time. The economy of the Soviet satellite regime in Cuba is in distress. Prolonged application of Communist policies has perhaps driven more Cubans than ever before to hate their government. And Castro continues losing friends in Latin America.

Pledge Unfulfilled

So far as is known, the pledge of Manuel Ray, one exile leader, to be fighting on Cuban soil by May 20 has not been accomplished, if Ray meant attacks on Castro's defense forces, or dynamiting military objectives, or widespread sabotage.

There are many, however, who think Ray may be inside Cuba now, preparing for events to come, even though the May 20 anniversary date of Cuban independence from Spain has passed without any spectatular news.

Ray's group says merely the new war of independence in Cuba has begun and asserts it is satisfied with the progress made so far, especially in the area of psychological warfare.

Another exile leader told this reporter in Miami that the Castro regime already has suffered two severe blows.

The new threat has kept his defense forces mobilized, involved enormous expense in transportation, housing and rations, and perhaps made many soldiers weary of the whole thing.

In addition, the actions and rumors have excited the Cuban populace, kept the whole country in a state of tension and doubtless hampered the economy, he said.

Two weeks with the exiles in the Miami area, listening to them and to the broadcasts out of Cuba leave one with some distinct impressions.

—It is hard not to believe the leaders of the three major exile groups, and those of smaller organizations numbering dozens, when they say the new fight for independence of Cuba is under way. Except for a raid last week on a sugar mill there have been no spectacular developments.

An exiled Cuban journalist reported Friday in Mexico City that anti-Castro guerrillas had attacked a Soviet nuclear submarine base at Bahia Honda on Cuba's north shore 72 miles west of Havana. There was no confirmation of this report.

Nothing Spectacular

But the exile leaders all emphasize they do not contemplate any mass invasion, spectacular bombings, or anything resembling broad-scale warfare, particularly in the early stages.

What they do plan is infiltration into Cuba of small groups —two or three men in some cases, 10 to 50 in others — to carry out guerrilla warfare, sabotage, dynamiting of targets that are strategic for military or propaganda purposes. Hand in hand with this goes an effort to win away from Castro the militiamen and regular armed forces now serving him, as well as the support of the general populace.

—One reason for the lack of sensational occurrences is that by the Castro's government own announcements, its defenses are at a peak, and the cost of failure for an attacking group is death before the firing squad.

School Poem Comes To Life

HARRISBURG (AP) -- Once upon a schoolday dreary, as kids pondered weak and weary, came a tapping at the schoolhouse door. It was a blackbird.

Mrs. Harriet Groninger was reading the poem "The Raven," by Edgar Allen Poe, to her eighth-grade literature class at New Cumberland Junior High School when the bird flew into the room, Thursday.

The bird—a close relative of the raven — circled the room three times, then left.

Asked if she liked that kind of interruption, Mrs. Groninger quoth:

"Nevermore."

Laos To Ask Military Aid From Britain, France, U.S.

Phouma Determined To Turn Back Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced today "we are going to ask aid from France, the United States and Britain—both military and economic—for the defense of the country's unity."

The neutralist coalition chieftain, whose neutralist army has been swept from the Plaine des Jarres by the pro - Communist Pathet Lao, told The Associated Press: "We are now in the process of establishing our needs."

U.S. jets already are flying reconnaissance missions over territory held by the Pathet Lao trying to pinpoint military concentrations and movements.

Washington sources said these unarmed, high-flying craft started work Thursday at Souvanna's request. The premier declined comment on them.

A report from Washington said one U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane was hit by Pathet Lao ground fire but made it back to its carrier in the South China Sea.

All foreign military forces were supposed to withdraw from Laos under the 14-nation Geneva agreements of 1962, which guaranteed this landlocked Southeast Asian kingdom independence and neutrality. But the accords provide the government can bring in limited quantities of war material for defense.

The United States pulled out its contingents which had trained and advised government troops in the 1959-61 civil war.

There never has been any proof that foreign Communists—specifically combat and supply units of Communist North Viet Nam—quit the country.

Souvanna charged that North Vietnamese took part with Pathet Lao battalions in the offensive that drove the neutralists from the Plaine des Jarres in the north - central highlands last weekend.

But both the neutralists' military position and the prospects for an international conference which Souvanna is seeking on the crisis seemed to brighten.

Monsoon rains mired jungle roads and blocked any substantial movement by the Red-led army which drove Gen. Kong Le's neutralist forces from the Plaine des Jarres. There were no new reports of fighting.

Kitty Hawk Jets Finish Laos Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — First reports from U.S. reconnaissance flights over Laos have been completed despite Communist ground fire which struck one plane.

The reports will be turned over to the Laos government for its use in trying to halt an offensive by the Communist Pathet Lao forces, the State said Friday. They will be made available also to the International Control Commission charged with carrying out the agreement making Laos neutral.

It was learned that the low-level reconnaissance flights are being carried out by Navy Crusader jets operating in pairs from the 78,000-ton carrier Kitty Hawk in the South China Sea.

The Associated Press was told that one of the Crusaders was struck by antiaircraft fire but the pilot was uninjured and the aircraft was only slightly damaged and returned safely to the Kitty Hawk.

U.S. Asks Hoffa Fee Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department disclosed Friday it will try to force the Teamsters Union to disclose how much money it has spent defending Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa against federal charges.

The department stepped into the case after the union refused to answer a Labor Department subpoena to open its books. Department spokesmen refused to say when it will go into court to enforce the subpoena.

A federal court suit by rank-and-file members seeks reimbursement of all union funds spent to defend Hoffa in his current Chicago kickback conspiracy trial, his recent federal jury tampering conviction and other cases.

Some members of the same group of Philadelphia Teamsters rebels who asked for the Labor Department investigation filed the suit against Hoffa and 18 other top Teamsters officials.

The Labor Department has he power to investigate and make public the amount of money involved but it is up to individual union members under the law to sue for recovery of any funds allegedly misused.

Cuban Says Soviet Sub Base Attacked

MEXICO CITY (AP)--Modesto Vazquez, Mexican delegate of the National Syndicate of Cuban Journalists in Exile, asserted Friday a Soviet nuclear submarine base in Cuba was attacked by anti-Castro guerrillas Wednesday.

Asked in Havana for comment on this and other exile reports of raids on Cuba, a spokesman for Castro's Foreign Ministry said: "We cannot confirm or deny anything yet."

There was no confirmation of Vazquez' claim from any source and he declined to give the source of his information.

Reports telephoned through censorship from Havana said there were rumors in well-informed circles of the Cuban capital that guerrilla activity in Pinar del Rio Province had increased.

Under Alert

Cuba was still under the military alert imposed Wednesday—the day Vazquez claims the raid was made.

Vazquez said the raiders killed an estimated five Russians before retreating.

Vazquez did not say whether any guerrillas had been killed or captured in the raid which he said took place near Bahia Honda. He said superior Soviet force and firepower forced the guerrillas to retreat into the Sierra de Los Organos after an hour-long skirmish.

This is the Pinar del Rio region where Havana reports said Friday, an anti-Castro armed band had been captured. It is 72 miles west of Havana.

Miss Blatt Leads Race By 247 Votes

HARRISBURG (AP) — Attorneys for Genevieve Blatt told Commonwealth Court Friday they have been unable to serve Justice Michael A. Musmanno with a notice that the vote count in the April 28 Democratic U. S. senatorial primary will be challenged if he is declared the winner.

Miss Blatt, secretary of internal affairs, and Musmanno, a member of the state Supreme Court, opposed each other in the primary race in which a winner has yet to be certified. On the basis of incomplete returns, Miss Blatt leads by 247 votes.

Khru Looks Over Egyptian Wheat

LIBERATION Province, Egypt (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev's car rolled to a stop in a cloud of dust. He got out, grabbed a shiny new sickle and strode bouncingly into a wheat field under the searing desert sun.

Looking over the crop carefully, the visiting Soviet leader cut the first sheaf of this year's wheat harvest — delayed two weeks for his arrival Friday—tasted a few grains and pronounced it "not bad."

Khru Blunt

When one of the Egyptian farm officials clustered around him agreed that the grain was small and dry but argued that it gave a particularly high yield, Khrushchev remarked: "Do not make up stories -- I have heard that one before."

The Egyptian, looking a bit crushed for a second, smiled graciously at the premier and declared: "You are a No. 1 specialist."

"No, I am not a specialist," Khrushchev rejoined, "but I understand a bit about it."

This little episode, complete with some of the bluntness the Egyptians had been expecting from the often outspoken Soviet leader, occurred at a farm in Liberation Province, a mixture of sandy wastes and man-made greenery 27 miles south of Alexandria.

The farm chosen for his visit, once a barren plain, is part of 78,000 acres Egypt is working to transform through irrigation into orchards and pastureland.

An official said Egypt is seeking $48 million in U.S. aid for the project, aimed to provide farmland for 16,000 families.

Rides In US Car

Khrushchev rode in an American car past hundreds of acres of desert and farms, stopping occasionally to look things over and pass out advice.

Capitol Sit-Ins Stopped

HARRISBURG (AP)—A Chester Negro leader abruptly suspended a day-and-a-half civil rights demonstration in front of the state Capitol Friday after conferring by phone with Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandroni.

Stanley Branche, head of the Chester Committee for Freedom Now, took the action after a one-half hour talk with Alessandroni over Negro charges of alleged state police brutality in curbing racial demonstrations in that Delaware County community.

Branche said he agreed to meet with Alessandroni next week to discuss results of a state police investigation in the Negroes charge.

Branche said Alessandroni told him the report is expected to be ready Monday, at which time the Justice Department would give it a thorough review.

LBJ Speaks In Michigan; Calls For 'Great Society'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — President Johnson paid a whirlwind visit to Michigan for a commencement address and used the occasion Friday for election-year politicking in this key industrial state.

The trip, coming six months to the day from the date on which he was sworn into office, gave more than 100,000 Michigan citizens their first glimpse of him as President.

At Detroit's Metropolitan Airport, he was greeted by a crowd of 25,000 who cheered both him and Republican Gov. George Romney, serving as the state's official greeter.

Roundly Cheered

Johnson was roundly cheered and applauded as he left the University of Michigan football stadium where a shirt-sleeve crowd of 85,000 heard him deliver a 15-minute philosophical speech.

Upon alighting from the presidential jet for the 30-mile helicopter trip to the campus, from the nearby airport, the President—grinning and waving—told the crowd:

"This welcome moves me to recall an old song—'Will You Love Me in November as You Do in May?'"

He told the cheering crowd, "Nothing restores the President's soul like a warm Detroit welcome."

The political overtones of the trip were apparent in the fact that several key figures in Michigan Democratic party affairs accompanied the President on his brief foray.

Among these were Rep. Neil Staebler who will seek the governorship this fall; and former Gov. G. Mennen Williams, now assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

LBJ Philosophical

The university speech was in the nature of a philosophical statement on the nation's need to build toward what Johnson termed "the great society."

Citing "a long catalogue of ills," the President said the cure must be accomplished over the next five decades and must include, among other things, the rebuilding of cities, preservation of countryside and expansion of education, both in quality and size.

"For better or for worse, your generation has been appointed by history to deal with those problems and lead America toward a new age," he told the graduates

The President said he intends to establish "working groups" to prepare a series of conferences on these and other "emerging challenges."

Scranton To Lead GOP To Frisco

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton was elected by acclamation Friday as as chairman of the 64 - man Pennsylvania Republican delegation to the GOP national convention in San Francisco July 13.

Scranton, favorite son candidate for the presidential nomination, repeated that he does not want to be president or vice president, even though Republican leaders meeting here continued boosting him for the office.

In placing the governor's name in nomination, Sen. M. Harvey Taylor said:

"This is really an honor. Here I am placing in nomination the next President of the United States. He's the only man who has the ability and the charm to keep going up."

Scott Nominates

Seconding the nomination, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., praised Scranton as a man of leadership. Scott said he had heard from many other delegates from other states who regard Scranton as the logical man to lead the Republican party.

Both Scott and Taylor are delegates-at-large to the national convention.

Local GOP In Force At Conference

Monroe County Republicans are well represented at state party doings in Philadelphia this weekend.

A luncheon for delegates and alternates to the Republican National Committee at the Bellevue-Stratford yesterday noon was attended by Harold Kresge and Hanford Cleveland. They were joined last night by Mr. and Mrs. Parke Unangst, Jack Davis and Nancy Shukaitis at a "Party for Patriots" dinner at the Ewing Home, Pickering Creek Farm, Valley Forge.

The group will attend the Governor's Breakfast this morning at the Bellevue-Stratford at 8 a.m. and from there go to the organizational meeting of the Republican State Committee.

Baptists See Danger In School Prayer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —The nation's biggest Protestant denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, and its Northern counterpart strongly opposed Friday any school prayer amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The Baptists took the position that tampering with the constitutional guarantee of religious liberty might ultimately bring some form of governmental control or dominance of school devotionals by a particular religion.

Rusk Says Viet War May Expand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Friday night the war in South Viet Nam may be expanded "if the Communists persist in their course of aggression."

Rusk also declared that the present situation in Laos, created by Communist offensives against troops of the neutralist government, "raises the gravest questions" and he indicated that new decisions on further U.S. moves in Southeast Asia are in the making.

His statement on possible expansion of the South Viet Nam conflict, contained in a speech prepared for the American Law Institute meeting here, was obviously directed to Communist North Viet Nam, Red China and the Soviet Union.

Rusk did not say how the expansion might occur but there has been increasing talk here since the crisis in Laos began developing a week ago that military strikes might be made against North Viet Nam, which the United States accuses of supporting Communist forces in both Laos and South Viet Nam.

The Christian's Responsibility ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Judges 9:7-15; Luke 20:19-26; Romans 13:1-7; I Peter 4:12-16.

The parable of the trees and the thorn stresses the importance of electing the right men to high public offices.—Judges 9:7-15.

Jesus tells us to obey our governments, whether they be good or bad, for they, like us, are answerable to God.—Luke 20:19-26.

Paul lays down the basic truths of government: Rulers should rule for the good of all and punish evildoers without favor.—Romans 13:1-7.

Peter says through suffering our lives are purified and we are brought closer to Christ.—I Peter 4:12-16.

GOLDEN TEXT: Luke 20:25.

Today's Lesson:
Christian Responsibility

By R. H. Ramsey

It is interesting to note how the Bible offers us guidance for every major area of life, every basic relationship involving human experience, even to the government under which we live. Though the Bible has much to say about good and bad governments, it never condemns the state, but always upholds it as a necessary institution.

Our lesson begins with a parable stressing the importance of making a correct decision when we are given an opportunity to elect men to high, governmental offices. It concerns the selfish and cruel Abimelech, son of Gideon, who, through conspiracy and the murder of his brothers, Was appointed king of Shechem.

Jotham, his youngest brother, escaped the slaughter and, when told of Abimelech's appointment, told the parable of the trees and the thorn. Jotham interprets the parable, saying, if they have done well in naming Abimelech king, then they should rejoice. But if they have made an evil choice, then tragedy would certainly befall them.

Matthew, Mark and Luke record the Holy Week episode of Christ's reply to the question of paying tribute to a disliked government with the paragraphs from Luke.

The annual tax, or tribute, which the Romans extracted from the Jews was the chief sign of their subjugation to the Roman yoke and formed the most burning issue of the day. It was inevitable, therefore, that Jesus would be asked His opinion of the practice. The framing of the question was a deliberate attempt on the part of the priests to trap Jesus in a treasonous statement for which he could be more or less legally condemned.

Jesus perceived their craftiness and His answer left trem no possibility of a reply. He forced His questioners to produce a Roman coin and, noting Ceasar's likeness upon it, advised them to render unto Caesar such material things as belonged to him, but to withhold for God those spiritual values rightfully His.

The answer was perfect, complete. Instead of involving Jesus in a predicament, as they had hoped, His response, involving two great truths, rebuked the interrogators. Nevertheless, when the Jews brought Jesus before Pilate, they accused Him of "perverting the nation and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar" — an accusation clearly contradicted by His own words earlier in the week.

In the paragraphs from Romans, Paul lays down some basic truths regarding man's relationship to the government which rules him. Rulers are to rule for the good of all. This is ordained by God and is the general principle underlying government itself. Human government is a divine institution. The form in which it exists and the persons who exercise its functions, are determined by His providence. This is God's arrangement of state authority.

Rulers should punish evildoers without favor. Government is for the administration of justice; it condemns itself when it descends to injustice. God places rulers among men to control wickedness by means of laws and penalties directed against evil deeds.

Parson To Parson

by Roderick MacLeod

"I DARE TO BELIEVE"

"I Dare To Believe" was the theme of the Salvation Army Youth conference at Tamniment this week.

Five hundred young people in their early teens dare to believe in Salvation.

Young voices lifted in song and praise drifting over the lake, thrill anew older hearts. Officers of the Army teaching young cadets how to love and be loved in His service reaffirm faith in today's young folk.

Colonel Cox commander of the Army for 11 eastern states and Puerto Rico won the hearts of his cadets by appearing in an Indian skit thereby proving that he not only has a sense of humor but has that quality of leadership which enables him not to fear laughter from his subordnates.

The Colonel is a former Baptist.

He said it was "Just like transferring from the Navy to the Army!"

Cadets formed small groups and discussed topics "Marrage for the Christian", "Sins of Youth," "Preparation for Christian Service " and "Christian Education."

In all history the name of Jesus Christ has never been heard more often on the grounds of Tamiment than this week-end. It is a place richly endowed in natural beauty and the worship of God make it even more abundent in beauty.

It was a thrill to see teenagers unafraid to stand on their own two feet and proclaim — "I dare to believe!" It takes courage to defy the jibes and scorn of others, returning only love and kindness in return.

Today, it is the accepted thing that is right. Not whether it is a question of right or wrong, moral or immoral, if most of the kids do it, that seems to be enough.

Cheating in school during tests is not frowned upon. Cheating on homework assignments and the use of phony excuses seem to be accepted as "par for the course". Students just do not see anything wrong in this, just so they are not caught.

Cheating is cheating. No matter how one may disguise it. To cheat is morally wrong and should not be condoned. In the long view, the cheater not only cheats himself of a proper character, but lowers all those who aid him in deception.

The Salvation Army "lays it on the line" and calls sin, "sin". The teaching is fundamental, and the Army goes by the Book. What is right is right and what is wrong is wrong. There is no gray in between!

Along with teaching recognition of sin comes, the teaching of hating sin but loving the sinner. This is a code that other churches could well adopt and follow.

All churches should have the sincere respect that the Army gets from people in all walks of life. The Army well deserves it, has earned it, not only by faith, but by works.

Religion Today

Has The Church Kept Pace?

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

COVENTRY, England (AP) — Has the church kept pace as the medieval artisan turned into the modern factory worker?

Does religion comprehend the problems thrown up by modern industry — by "England's dark satanic mills?"

Few theologians feel it does, and one Church of England parson is devoting his life to discovering how the church can understand industrial society from the inside.

He is the Rev. Simon Phipps, in some ways the most spectacular member of the industrial chaplains' movement that began in the steel city of Sheffield a quarter-century ago. The movement is growing throughout the Church of England, traditional preserve of Britain's high-born establishment. Phipps 42, and a bachelor, is industrial chaplain in Coventry, city of car factories and postwar affluence.

"Industrial society is the major fact of modern life," he told an interviewer. "The church must find out what it means — for good or ill. The industrial mission is struggling to understand the world as it is. The parish church is often dealing with the world as it isn't."

There are few bluer bloods in England than Phipps. His father was gentleman usher to the king. His background is Eton, Cambridge and the Grenadier Guards, and in younger days he was a sometime escort to Princess Margaret.

One night about a decade ago Phipps went to a performance of "Look Back in Anger," the play that brought Britain's angry young men to public notice. He heard the hero, Jimmy Porter, speak of his personal anguish in a scene where church-bells sound offstage.

"Here was real life and inner need," recalled Phipps. "Out there the symbol of society raised up by God to minister to that need. Yet it seems to offer the world nothing more than an hour of meaningless ceremony."

He felt the church had not developed a language to reach the industrial worker. During the college vacation of '5 he got a job in a Coventry airplane plant as a timber loader at 7 pounds—$19.60—a week. He also joined the Amalgamated Engineering Union, perhaps the first —and the only Church of England clergyman who is a union member.

Phipps worked incognito for two months. Then the secret leaked out. "Princess Margaret's friend puts on cloth cap," screamed the headlines, and Phipps went back to Cambridge.

Russian Visit Stimulates Contacts

COPENHAGEN — Favorable impressions left by the recent visit of a legation of the Russian Orthodox Church to the Danish Lutheran Church are expected to create an atmosphere for increasing contacts between the two Churches.

Led by the Russian Church's second-ranking prelate Metropolitan Pimen, the five-man delegation made a week's visit in mid-April. It was the first official visit ever made to this country by a Russian Orthodox group.

Among the mentioned possibilities for greater future contacts are the sending of Russian theologians to Danish theological faculties, the exchange of students, and introduction of a theological correspondence.

Catholic Bishops Prepare Translation For Masses

WASHINGTON — The bishops of the United States are preparing for extensive use of English at mass and other rituals, following the announcement in New York last week that Rome has approved such a move.

The changeover — which awaits publication of the new liturgical books — will be fixed later this year by the U.S. Conference of bishops. Francis Cardinal Spellman, president of the Conference, last week announced that proposals submitted by the bishops to the Holy See for use of the vernacular in the liturgy were approved.

The bishops adopted the changes, subject to Rome's approval, at a full meeting of the U.S. hierarchy in Washington April 2. Separate decrees spell out parts of the liturgy to be changed from Latin to English, and certifying various English texts.

The Constitution on the Liturgy was adopted by the Vatican Council of the world's bishops in Rome Nov. 22 and promulgated by Pope Paul in ceremonies bringing the Council's second session to a close, Dec. 4, in St. Peter's Basilica.

In a document signed May 1 by Giacomo Cardinal Lercaro of Bologna, Italy, chairman of the new commission for implementing that decree, the U.S. changes were confirmed. They include both sung and recited masses as well as other liturgical services.

The U.S. bishops have decreed that English may replace Latin for the lessons of the mass — the Epistle and Gospel and other readings sometimes preceding the Epistle — and that they are to be proclaimed facing the people instead of the altar.

English also is to be used in other parts of the mass such as the Kyrie, Gloria, Creed, Sanctus, Lord's Prayer, Agnus Dei, Ecce Agnus Dei and the triple "non sum dignus" before the Communion of the faithful. Also in English will be the invocations by the faithful after the Gospel and sermon; the Introit, Gradual, Offertory and Communion anthem, and various salutations and dialogue such as "The Lord be with you. And with your spirit."

Opening prayers at the foot of the altar, and the Collect, the Preface and the rest of the Canon of the Mass, except the Sanctus-Benedictus, remain in Latin.

English also is provided for all sacrament and sacramental rites except Holy Orders.

The new decrees allow the local bishop to permit vernacular languages other than English when he decides "the true and certain necessity of the church requires." Thus Spanish-speaking communities in this country could have the liturgy in their own tongue.

Assessment Requests Swamp Assessors

(This is the first in a series by Gil Murray on the trials and tribulations faced by the Monroe County assessors' office.)

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County chief tax assessor yesterday took issue with township supervisors, school directors and private citizens who are clamoring to have property in all parts of the county assessed at the same time.

C. A. Nauman said if people would take time to visit the assessor's office they would find the amount of work that goes into the average assessment makes it impossible to take care of all requests at the same time.

Due to a recent change in the law — which allows supervisors and school boards to request assessments at any time of the year — the assessor's office has been swamped with requests for property assessments.

Nauman said until last year the assessor closed his books in August for assessments for the coming year.

"Now in addition to taking care of our normal work by Aug. 1 we are also forced to make on the spot assessments as they are brought to our attention," he said.

Working At Maximum

The chief assessor said his office staff is working at its maximum capacity in an effort to get out the increased work load.

He said supervisors and school boards, who send long lists of requests for property assessments, make his job more difficult by not supplying needed information about the properties involved.

"I have had a man in Barrett Township for the last two weeks going over a list of requested property assessments from the township supervisors and he can't find half the places named in the list," Nauman complained.

He said he is in complete agreement with the necessity of getting new building and land transactions on the tax rolls promptly but with only two deputy assessors and incomplete information, action is often times bogged down.

Nauman said, in addition to the new law permitting assessments at any time of the year, his office possesses more deeds in a month than a county assessor of ten years ago did in one year.

"I have no argument with the theory the work can be done. But it can't be done with two deputy assessors," he claimed.

Nauman said his office has been promised another assessor for next year by the county commissioners.

Explains Assessments

He also explained why such places as Camelback Ski Resort and the new $1 million addition at Buck Hill Falls have assessed valuations that seem to be out of line with their construction costs.

He said Camelback spent $750,000 to build the bass lodge and all the ski trails and tows. It is assessed for $102,900.

"At Camelback we were only able to assess the main building, a concrete block building and a ticket booth in addition to the land the Camelback corporation actually owns.

"We cannot assess any of the chair lifts, T-Bars or J-Bars. Nor can we assess any of the land the corporation leases from the state for $1 a year," Nauman explained.

He said the Buck Hill addition is now in the process of being assessed.

"However the same will be true there. All we will be able to assess is the building shell, not the equipment that is in it. This means we won't be able to assess any of the furnishings in the building," he said.

Nauman said that while the county's assessed valuation jumped $3,084,900, "The county is fighting for survival because of the tax free land."

Exemptions Hit

He pointed out that 30 per cent of the county's land is exempt from taxes.

"We have 15,000 acres of tax free camps in the county. That's more than 20 square miles. Do you know that if you took a line one-half mile wide and extending from one end of the county to the other, you could fill it with tax free camps?" he said.

He pointed out there is a direct relationship between municipalities with large amounts of tax exempt land and delinquent taxes.

"East Stroudsburg has $17,000,000 of tax free property and Coolbaugh Township has $34,000,000. Do you know what places in the county own the highest percentage of delinquent taxes? That's right, East Stroudsburg and Coolbaugh," Nauman declared.

Nauman lamented "The people are yelling that their assessments are too high and the supervisors are yelling they are too low. We are right in the middle. Maybe that's the place to be."

Versions Conflict In Hotel Hearing

STROUDSBURG — Four defense witnesses paraded to the stand yesterday and gave accounts in direct conflict to earlier plaintiff testimony as the Monatt, Inc. and Donald Trueheart legal proceedings struggled through another session.

Three witnesses said they heard a contractor boast he had a court order permitting him to start work in the restaurant of the American House Hotel.

Testifying were John Trethaway, Stroudsburg police chief, Elsie Cooper of 738 Ann St., Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Susan Brown of Marshalls Creek, waitresses at the hotel.

Last week Charles Frank, Stroudsburg contractor engaged by Monatt to do work at the hotel, testified he had never told anyone he was in possession of a court order permitting him to work at the hotel.

The fourth witness, Nathan Abeloff, East Stroudsburg real estate dealer, said all his business dealings with Trueheart were "satisfactory."

Edward Katz, Monatt president, said at an earlier hearing Abeloff had returned a $2,000 payment Trueheart made on a diner because he didn't want Trueheart in the diner.

The apparent conflicting version's were voiced during the fourth day of a hearing in which Monatt, Inc. seeks an injunction restraining Trueheart from interferring with planned work at the hotel.

Trueheart claims he has 24-month oral lease to operate the restaurant and when he refuses to allow work in the restaurant he is protecting his property.

In other developments, Gil Murray, a Daily Record reporter, took the stand to explain a news story that appeared in the paper quoting Katz as saying the firm had given a lease to Trueheart.

Murray said Katz came to the newspaper and gave the editor a written statement concerning the article. He said the editor in turn gave him the statement and he wrote a story from it.

Murray said he verified the statement with Samuel Monatt. "Monatt told me the information was correct and that Katz was handling the publicity on the project," Murray said. The reporter said he had no way of knowing if Katz wrote the statement but "assumed he did."

At the time the article appeared — Jan. 3, 1964 — the firm was in the process of publicizing renovations and additions it intended to make at the recently-acquired hotel.

At the start of yesterday's proceedings, Trethaway said he was called to the hotel on April 21, to quell a disturbance. He said in his investigation he questioned Frank and was told about the court order.

The proceedings were continued until Wednesday after Atty. James R. Marsh, Trueheart's lawyer, called Monatt to the stand. Monatt was not in court. Walter Olenick's Monatt's attorney, said he will make every effort to have Monatt in court Wednesday.

Olenick said Monatt was in New York City yesterday recuperating from an eye operation.

In a surprise move yesterday, Marsh petitioned the court to declare a non-suit in the proceedings. After calling a recess to consider the request, Judge Fred W. Davis denied the motion.

Train Fire Fought At Henryville

POCONO PARK — Stroud Twp. Fire Co. was called to the Erie - Lackawanna Railroad station in Henryville yesterday at 2 a.m. to extinguish a fire in a gondola car loaded with railroad ties.

The gondola was one of 56 cars on an eastbound freight When the blaze was discovered, the train crew radioed East Stroudsburg and asked for a fire company to meet the train at the Henryville station.

Firemen, using smoke masks and using one and one-half inch lines went after the ties one by one, removed the ties as they were extinguished and threw them off the car.

Fire Chief Lester Rice said the fire started in the rotten flooring of the gondola by sparks thrown up by the brakes as the train came down the mountain.

He said more than 1,500 gallons of water were used to extinguish the fire yesterday.

The LEGEND of the DOGWOOD
(author unknown)

"At the time of the Crucifixion, the dogwood tree was as large and strong as the oak, and was chosen as the timber for the cross.

"To be used for this purpose distressed the tree, and Jesus, in his pity, promised: "Never again shall you grow large enough to be used for a Cross.

"Henceforth, the dogwood tree shall be slender and twisted; its blossoms in the form of a cross . . . two long and two short petals.

"At the edge of each petal there shall be nail prints; in the center of hte flower, a Crown of Thorns. And this tree shall be cherished as a reminder of My Cross..

"So it has been, and the spring-time flowering of the dogwood has remained a symbol of Divine Sacrifice and the Triumph of Eternal Life."

Job Bias Records

The civil rights bill stuck in a U.S. Senate filibuster would allow a new Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to prescribe by regulation or order, after public hearing, that all employers, employment agencies, and labor organizations keep "records relevant to the determination of whether unlawful employment practices have been or are being committeed."

A recent Daily Record editorial incorrectly stated that the civil rights bill did not mention keeping of such records by employers and labor unions.

The bill does not say specifically what records must be kept, but it does open the door for the federal commission to require almost anything in this field.

Those who fear that this open door could lead to unnecessary and wasteful federal record-keeping requirements may have a legitimate complaint.

The history of federal agencies, even the best-run and most useful, proves that those who fear harassment by paper work are not shooting at ghosts. It could be a very real problem.

The basic question is whether the civil rights bill's purpose of preventing discrimination in employment can be achieved without federal requirement of special employment and job application records.

Job discrimination is one of the most important and controversial sections of the bill. It should be strong enough to allow effective enforcement. And it could be strong enough without this record-keeping requirement, which is one of the major stumbling blocks to passage of the bill.

A charge of job discrimination because of race or color or relgion can be made legally and effectively without official records in company or union files.

Such records will certainly not contain incriminating evidence or statements; evasive employers and unions will make sure of that.

The possibility that one federal agency would require a statement of the color, race and religion of all job applicants, employes, or union members while other federal agencies fight to eliminate such questions or statements from similar records suggests one inevitable contradiction of required records on job discrimination.

The power of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to require such records could be limited considerably or eliminated completely without weakening the civil rights bill.

Comment Of The Day

"Partly because of anxieties about the cold war, partly because of our natural technological bias, which leads use to place extraordinary faith in the ability of "technicians" to deal with matters that we ourselves find incomprehensive, and partly because of the vested interests of the military-industrial complex,' we are permitting the vast military establishment largely to run itself, to determine its own needs and to tell us what sacrifices are expected of us to sustain the national arsenal of weapons."

Europe Shifts

By Walter Lippmann

In yesterday's article I described the political pause in Western Europe brought on by the coming elections in Great Britain, Germany and the United States. This does not mean that Europe is standing still. Far from it.

In all the leading countries there is underway and already far-advanced a very great change in the basic assumptions of foreign policy. The situation, the relationships, the play of military forces, the objectives of governments are already decisively different than they were in the postwar era, that is to say in the late 1940s and well through the 1950s. There is underway a shift in the diplomatic center of gravity in European affairs — a shift from Western Europe to Continental Europe.

In all the principal governments concerned, including our own, there is a lag between their avowed policies and the actual development of European affairs. The lag is due in part to the fact that none of the Western governments, except Gaullist France, feels it has sufficient political authority at home to move very far off the well-beaten paths of the 1950s. The lag is due also to the objective fact that the shift in the center of gravity is recent, strange and uncertain and that it is easier and safer to stay within the old formulae and the old slogans.

Nevertheless, the outstanding fact about Europe today is that there is a decisive change as compared with the 1950s. That is why the NATO establishment is so sick. That is why the earlier hopes of the European community are not being fulfilled.

The reason is, I am convinced, that the conception of Europe held by Europeans today is radically different from the conception of Europe in the 1950s. This radical difference is not easy to explain, and I am well aware that to many it will be unconvincing and highly controversial. I am venturing to attempt to explain it because the point is crucial to an understanding of the relations between Western Europe, Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States.

We must start by remembering that when the world war ended the European continent was divided by the armistice line at which the Red army and the Allied armies halted. This became the iron curtain. The immediate postwar policy of the Western allies was inspired by two absorbing purposes: to prevent the revival of an independent armed Germany and to block an advance of the Red army across Western Germany and into Paris.

The postwar policy and strategy were constructed accordingly. Germany was to remain divided, and its western part was to be integrated into a Western European system. This would make Western Germany safe against the Soviets and safe for the Allies. As the passions of war subsided, it became the fashion to speak more tactfully of all this. But, as I know from many interviews in Paris and London and even Bonn, this was the dynamic principle of what came to be known as the "European" movement.

The postwar conception of what was called "Europe" was in fact a Europe and a Germany partitioned at the iron curtain. The founders of the "European Community" never had any desire or any plan to grapple with the enormous complications of reunifying Germany and of creating an all-European Community. All that seemed hopelessly remote.

They were probably right to organize defensively what they held, for there was little or no chance in the decade between, let us say, the Berlin blockade and airlift of 1948 and the orbiting of Sputnik in 1958, when any kind of accommodation with the East was practical politics.

But if we compare 1964 with 1954, we see that this postwar "Europe" was merely Western Europe with Western Germany: whereas increasingly today the idea of "Europe" is tending to include the old Soviet satellites in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union itself as a power in the Western World.

This is the central fact in the evolution of West German foreign policy — the opening up of trade and cultural relations with the East European countries, excepting, of course, East Germany. All this had begun in the latter years of Dr. Konrad Adenauer's regime. But it is being carried forward with considerable energy by Dr. Ludwig Erhard and Dr. Gerhard Schroeder.

They are establishing trade missions, each headed by a senior foreign service officer, in the East European capitals. This amounts to recognition without calling it recognition. There are in progress negotiations with Moscow, and the question is no longer whether, but when, Chancellor Erhard and Chairman Khrushchev are to meet.

As part of this evolution, the objective of German reunification, which received little more than lip service in the postwar era, has become a real political possibility. As the German Federal Republic reopens relations with Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, the vital interest of the Soviet Union in East Germany can be expected to decline. When Walter Ulbricht disappears, as someday one may hope he will, the force of German national feelings will provide powerful pressure toward reunification.

What has become of the special relations between France and Germany which General Charles de Gaulle and Dr. Adenauer sought to establish? As a working partnership in European and world politics, it has, I believe, failed completely. Bonn will not act with Paris when there is a conflict with Washington.

But it would be a mistake, nevertheless, to dismiss as unimportant the relations between General DeGaulle and the Federal Republic. The general, it is quite evident, understands very well that the wave of the future is an accommodation with Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union which leads to the reunification of Germany. It has always been his purpose to have this eventual accommodation worked out by a European, that is to say by a Frenchman, and not by an American as at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam.

It is quite clear that the eventual accommodation will require sacrifices by the Germans, most particularly the renunciation of their former territories beyond the Oder-Neisse line.

Twilight Zone

Reporter's Notebook

By Jeff Cox
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — "8½" has come and gone like a tidal wave, leaving in its wake a tumble of people not quite sure of just what they saw. It played at the Grand in East Stroudsburg last weekend.

Fredrico Fellini's greatest motion picture, "8½" can be ranked as a true artistic triumph.

The movie stirred up a small furor in some quarters — some condemned it as "dirty" because of its advertisement — showing a voluptuour girl.

But the ad had absolutely nothing to do with the movie. It was a come-on bilked up by the sellers, the hawkers. As with many great novels, the dust jackets show females in various stages of deshabille, but it means nothing.

What Did It Mean?

What was the meaning of the movie?

Because it is such a tightly knit piece of artistry, it might be enlightening to set down this interpretation:

At the very beginning of the movie, Guido, the hero, was born. Literally, he was born from an automobile while crowds watched. He was hatched from the roof of the car like Pallas Athena sprung full - grown from the forehead of Zeus.

In the scene, he was baptized: then the movie began.

We find out that Guido is a film director, working on what he hopes will be an artistic triumph. But he is obsessed with something. He constantly bites his nails. He twirls a lock of his hair. He cannot concentrate either on the movie he is making or on people.

A Little Boy

We find out that he is thinking of his past — when he was a little boy — 8½ years old to be exact (thus the title).

He was in a religious school, but he and three other little boys broke away and ran to the beach. There they found Seraghina.

Here is the crux of the whole movie. The boys pay her and she dances for them —she is obese, ugly, an overdeveloped caricature of the female body — she dances evilly and awkwardly, like a hippo might dance.

Young Guido is obsessed with her — but he is caught by a teacher and punished. He is told that women are evil and are to be avoided. Yet, he runs back to Seraghina and kneels before her while the words of his cleric echo in his ears: "You know Seraghina is the devil, don't you?"

Immature Love

He has made his commitment. He has chosen the immature love of the sensuous as opposed to the truly beautiful.

We are now back with Guido the 43-year - old adult. We begin to see that he is a nonproducing artist. There is something wrong. People keep telling him that he can't make a love movie.

And now we see it: he has been arrested — both his artistic and sexual development have been stopped cold at age 8½, by Seraghina. He is immature, adolescent in his thinking. Though he has a beautiful and mature wife, he sneaks about with a jaded strumpet.

He is making his movie about himself — and it is not working. It couldn't possibly work because he is immature, adolescent, still a child in his relationship to his work and to his wife.

"Asa Nisi Masa"

This is shown by the fortune - teller scene. A woman reads his mind and she finds the words "Asa nisi masa" in his thoughts. We later see that these words are a symbol of sensuality from his childhood.

Also, it is brought home again by the harem scene. He childishly dreams of a harem, with all the women he has ever known peopling it. He immaturely puts down a revolt with a whip, and banishes anyone over 25 to the room upstairs.

Finally, he comes to the point where he begins to see the absurdity of the work he is doing, and the futility of continuing. He is beginning to grow up.

"When are you going to grow up," says his sister-in-law. There is a dramatic pause. He smiles and says, "I don't know." His nailbiting and hair twirling all through the movie are signs of his immaturity.

Seraghina's Spell

He must expunge Seraghina's influence from his mind — he must kill the child that has been ruining his artistic and family life.

And so, when they go to the site of his huge launching pad — which is supposedly a main theme in the movie Guido is trying to make, but which only symbolizes the absurdity of his artistic progress — he decides to not make the movie at all.

He crawls under a table and shoots himself. But he is not dead. Far from it, he is free, for he has shot the little boy in his mind.

"I feel free," he says. And from the scaffolding, which is now useless, all the people he has known during his immature period descend.

Shrouds of Death

Most are wearing white — like shrouds of death — and they walk silently and slowly as if to the grave.

Guido, who has now finally reached maturity as an artist, begins to direct these figures from his life. He has them stand on a large ring and they join hands and start to circle — in a dance of death.

They are dying forever from his mind. He is killing them.

And now, to show to that one can never escape his past completely, Guido himself joins the circling corpses.

In the ring itself, an orchestra appears, made up of clowns, with the young Guido — the 8½-year - old Guido— leading them.

But the mature Guido is free, and the figures of his immature life disappear.

Childish Band

Only the boy is left, directing a silly band of childish clowns. Then the clowns leave and the boy is alone. And he disappears — forever.

Guido has reached sexual and artistic and religious maturity — he has been born again. The end of the movie echoes the beginning - - when he was born into the world of Seraghina.

There is much more in the movie than this major theme. The scene at the health spa when the health-seekers wrap themselves in white robes and descend the foggy steps into the steam room: what is that if it isn't a descent into hell? Big burly devil - like men stand about with no shirts, directing the damned into their reeking, sulphorous sweat-rooms.

And Guido descends to the lowest level of this Dante's inferno, where he talks to someone called "the Cardinal." This is Fellini's irony — we have met the real clerical Cardinal earlier and this is not the same man.

Devil Himself

Far from being the Cardinal, it is the devil himself— the devil of the lowest level of Dante"s hell, the ninth level (or possibly the 8½ level).

And there is more, much much more.

It is all so tightly knit — it all works out so beautifully. Fellini is a true artist, a true genius.

But where does one go from perfection.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: So a 76-year-old "playboy" runs after girls at a convention, eh? Well, a 70-year - old widow is running after my husband right here at home. She lives next door and is over here almost every day asking my husband's advice on something. He is a retired banker and is flattered by her attentions. He tries to answer her questions seriously while she gazes at him admiringly, and just oozes charm. I am told that the minute I leave the house she is over here either "borrowing" something or bringing back something she has borrowed. How can I let my husband know that she is after him?? I don't want him to think I am jealous at 68! I am upset over this.

TROUBLE IN ST. PETERSBURG

DEAR TROUBLE: What's wrong with telling your husband that you suspect that the "girl" next door has a teenage crush on him? If she can "ooze" charm at 70, you can ooze just as much at 68. Tell the old boy you are jealous, and if he casts any calf-eyes at her, you'll have his hide. And hers, too.

Hoover Editorial Brings Satire; Zoning; Integration; Yugoslavia

Not All The Editor's Rocks Are Under His Bed

Editor, The Daily Record:

When you travel around this old world as I have to, you meet a lot of jerks. (Being one yourself helps.) I stopped at a cheap hash-house the other night and here is this character with a burr under his tail about people who have it in for J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI boss.

Now I don't wear a halo, but it seems like every jerk who has a yen to spill his woe just naturally gravitates my way and spills.

J. Edgar's moral strength, patriotism and years of untouchable integrity had this guy blinded so he couldn't see the super cop's weakness.

I mean that weakness I read about in your editorial the other day — seeing communists under every bed and that red herring stuff Hoover is always harping about.

He went right back to 1924 when Harlen F. Stone, then attorney general, scoured the country for a man to bend up the FBI, and appointed Hoover. It was around the time the scandals of the Harding Administration were thundering over the head of President Cloolidge.

Our government's prestige was low. The FBI reputation was low, low, low.

Right about here is when I mentioned that editorial of yours. I said it was a real masterpiece and shows what a clever newspaper man we have here in good old Monroe County.

Well, when I said that, this guy really flipped. You'd think I'd said something nasty about his mother.

He admitted there had been some justifiable criticism of Hoover, but — "Boy, don't you know you can't be on an important job for 40 years without stepping on some bunions?

"Any man the communists hate and the left wing lunatic fringe, like the A.D.A., the Institute of Pacific Relations, etc. are trying to smash ought to have the praise of every loyal American."

Then he ordered another cup of coffee. He had spilled his first cup when I shook him with my reference to your classic exposure of J. E. H.'s weakness of chasing communists from under peoples' beds.

He got hotter than a cat's paw on a tin roof. The crowd gathered. They were with him. They allowed that nobody should say nasty things about this guy's hero.

Just shows you the harm one of these rabble rouser, super Patriots can reck if you don't turn the Establishment loose to cut him down, but fast.

"The great prestige of the F.B.I.", he bellered, "is not only from its success in getting rid of the Mafia and other criminals whose characters would soil the inside of a cesspool, and in tracking down communists like Dexter White, Alger Hiss, Soble, Rosenberg, Oppenheimer, Gus Hall, etc. and Nazi traitors, but mostly from the fact that it never got mixed up in politics."

"In 40 years under Hoover, no Agent of the F.B.I. got charged with bribery or corruption."

What a jerk! The guy seems to think honesty, loyalty to duty, patriotism, hard work and untouchable integrity, etc. should cover up for weaknesses like tracking down Communists and always blabbing about Communists trying to bury us and making our grandchildren live in a Socialist America.

The guy sounds like one of those hate monger fundamentalists.

Oh, well, it takes all kinds. Like the old man said when he kissed a cow, "Everybody to their own taste."

Then he used his clincher to set that crowd off like the Friends, Romans, Countrymen at Caesar's funeral when Mark Antony got done with them.

"Ya heard about them trying to hush up the Bobby Baker thing? Here's one that'll make the Baker blackout smell like fresh bread at your Grandma's house."

"Guy Richards, a real guttsy reporter on the New York Journal American stirred this one out of the moth balls on Capitol Hill."

A defector who went AWOL over the Berlin Wall)—A defector from Communist Russia, a Lt. Col. Golenlewski, probably not his real name, turns out to be a real bona fide officer of the K.G.B., the Soviet Secret Police.

"He's not a run of the mill sort. Right off this ex-Russian Secret Police agent gave details to certain agencies of communist infiltration in our government — details that could make a bigger story than the Alger Hiss treason case, and if it wasn't for Richards' prods, Washington would have blacked out this one too, but here's the point."

Now he builds up to a climax, that's supposed to clinch for all time that Hoover is really the most.

"This communist escapee claimed in his statement to our government big shots that:

1. The Soviet Secret Police had agents in the American State Department and CIA.

2. More than a million dollars of CIA funds — your money — got into the hands of the Reds and was divided among the Soviet Secret Police, the Italian Communist Party and the American Communist Party.

3. That an American diplomat who had been a Soviet Agent for 18 years when found out in 1961 by the CIA and State Dept. was allowed to resign and disappear abroad.

4. That the Soviet Secret Police have infiltrated all American embassies in important cities around the world and every U.S. Agency except the FBI."

He was really blowing up a storm, so I figured I'd better get a word in so I said, "Look, maybe the commie people don't want in the F.B.I. Maybe they are miffed at Hoover. Didn't he insinuate that communists sleep under beds. That's insulting. Everybody knows they sleep under rocks. Right!" He and the crowd agree with my clever rebuttal and I felt like I had scored.

But somehow this jerk got to me. Maybe, because, as I said, I'm part jerk myself.

Anyway, later as I cruised along the wee-hours-highway, the thought struck me that any editorial man who can't find a better topic than J. Edgar Hoover's "weakness" — well, he probably doesn't live under rocks, but he's got plenty of them and they're not all in his bed.

Token School Integration Not Enough

Editor, The Daily Record:

Ten years ago today, May 17, 1963, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down the "Brown vs. Topeka" decision, reversing the "separate but equal" decree of 1896.

The essence of the Court's decision was that the school boards involved "admit to public schools on a racially nondiscriminatory basis with all deliberate speed the parties (Negro students) involved."

The speed with which the South has carried out this decree can be seen from figures taken from the Charlotte N.C. Observer.

The states of Albama, Mississippi, and South Carolina, with a total of 838,340 Negro students, have exactly 21 enrolled in integrated schools.

I think that is in the light of "progress" like this that we can best interpret the increase in Negro militancy. The Negro has waited one hundred years for evuality. He is not going to wait much longer.

Eastburg Zoning Actions Criticized

Editor, The Daily Record:

I wish at this time to raise a question of policy in reference to the zoning board of East Stroudsburg. After little investigation I have found that very few residents of this community are at all aware of their actions or their policies.

I believe it would prove most beneficial if a report was made in this paper concerning their recent actions and if the zoning laws were indeed themselves published.

In essence I am raising a question of their function and power. If this board was created in the name of progress, I am questioning the means by which they intend to gain the end result.

Because of what I shall term "injustifiable actions of this body", I believe this question merits an immediate and complete answer.

Reader Lauds Stories On Yugoslavia

DEAR BOBBY WESTBROOK

I don't believe I've written a fan letter since I was fourteen and brightened Gary Cooper's life with one, but, I really feel compelled to write and tell you how very much I've enjoyed your columns about your Yugoslavian jaunt. They were fascinating and I really was disappointed that you didn't stay over there a little longer! Even my college age son and daughter enjoyed them and you know how critical kids can be.

Good luck in all you do, and please take another trip soon!

PEGGY RHOADS PHOE

P.S. I do enjoy your regular column too. I might add It's just that I know Stroudsburg. But I never expected to know much about Yugosliva and now I feel I do!

Doctors Must Recruit MD's

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The primary responsibility for halting an approaching doctor shortage rests with today's doctors, the president of the American Osteopathic Association said Friday.

"Physicians are the best recruiters of tomorrow's doctors," Dr. Wallace M. Pearson of Kirksville, Mo., told the Pennsylvania Osteopathic Association convention.

"A particular doctor's image, more than anything else, stimulates young people to become physicians," he said.

Judge Sentences Rich Burglars

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Judge Charles W. Staudenmeier Friday sentenced three men to prison for the burglary of the John B. Rich home here in August 1959.

Ralph Staino Jr. who was given a four to nine year term said through counsel he was going to file an appeal with the state Supreme Court. The judge continued $15,000 bail for Staino.

The other two, John Berkery and Robert Poulson, were sentenced to serve five to 12 years in prison for the crime. The two now are serving time for other burglaries, and Staudenmeier specified that their sentences for the Rich conviction start upon expiration of present terms.

Chamber Urges Toll Free Road

PORT JERVIS, N. Y. (AP)—The regional Chamber of Commerce Council has voted to support the creation of a new group to be known as the Interstate Route 84 Association. The four-lane, toll-free interstate highway is to connect Danbury, Conn., with Scranton, Pa.

The council's members are businessmen from four New York counties, two New Jersey counties and one in Pennsylvania. They met here Wednesday night.

The council gave its support to the proposed association at the urging of representatives of the Scranton Chamber of Commerce and the Scranton Planning Commission.

The purpose of the association would be to promote both faster construction of Interstate 84 and economic development of the area to be served by it.

State Colleges Gain Capital Support

By VINCENT P. CAROCCI
Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges apparently are finding some newly won friends for themselves in Harrisburg—in and out of the General Assembly.

This increasing tide of support may signal a new era in the public debate over state aid to higher education, particularly as it pertains to state colleges vs. private universities.

Both the state colleges and the private universities — such as Pitt, Penn and Penn State—come to the legislature each year in search of more state money.

There is a sentiment in some quarters that the state colleges —the commonwealth's own institutions of higher learning—are being short changed in favor of the private schools.

That sentiment has been noted in the legislature in the past. But the proponents of more aid to state colleges have not been large enough in number or influential enough in power to do much to advance their cause.

Until last week.

The House, much to the surprise of the Scranton administration, voted to add $2.3 million to the $19.3 million recommended by the governor for the state colleges in fiscal 1964-65.

The action, approved by an overwhelming vote of 151-25, was taken despite the protestations of appropriations chairman Blaine C. Hocker, R-Dauphin, who said there was no money in the budget to cover the increase.

The $2.3 million fell just about $200,000 short of what the state colleges themselves asked be added to their appropriation when they appeared before the Appropriations Committe to make their money pitch.

Part of the reason for this unexpected wave of legislative support for the state colleges can be attributed to normal election-year politics.

No legislator up for re-election in November can be blamed for voting more money to the state colleges. On the other hand, refusing to do this could be fuel for his opponent to burn in a campaign.

But there is another factor involved here beside a strict political consideration.

That is the mounting belief in legislative and education circles that the state colleges deserve more from state government than they previously had been getting.

The argument is being raised more and more by state college supporters that the schools received only 25 per cent of the state aid to higher education this fiscal year.

Private colleges and universities, on the other hand, received 36 per cent of the higher education allocation.

Take Penn State alone, with 10,000 less students than the total enrollment at the state colleges.

The university received $8 million more than the state colleges this fiscal year.

The proponents are not so much opposed to the private aid as they argue in favor of more aid for the state colleges.

They carry their argument into the question of autonomy, too.

The pro-state college people note that money approved for the private schools is theirs to spend as they see fit.

The state colleges, meanwhile, are subject to strict budget control. Any expenditure must be approved by the budget office.

Any money they have remaining at the end of the fiscal year automatically reverts to the general fund as a lapsed appropriation.

The state colleges want more leeway in this spending field, especially for routine expenditures. They also want to retain any money they might have remaining at the end of the year.

Eastburg Seniors Run School For Pre-Schoolers

The young tow-headed girl, stuck her tongue out, and grasping the heavy crayon in her slim fingers awkwardly traced an elephant.

The little boy, sat on the floor, and literally held court — toys all around him.

The freckle-faced girl, sang off-key but loved every minute she was singing.

These are only a few of the scenes as the senior girls of East Stroudsburg Area High School home economics class sponsor a play school for pre-school children.

Classes began Monday at the high school. They end on Thursday, May 28.

The purpose is to have the girls study play habits and different aspects of social living.

Daily activities include games, coloring, story book time, songs, playing with toys, a take home project, snack time and nap time.

Attending the school are David Berry, Claudia Getz, Karen Hunt, Bernita Dixon, Jeff Strunk, Reni Hendricks, Sue Ann Shotzberger, Lisa Dixon and Jamie Lynn Webber.

Seniors are Janet Strunk, Geri Van Pool, Linda Sirola, Gail LaBar, Linda Marrow, Connie Fox, Nancy Baker, Janet Sheldon, Linda Miller, Bonnie Brown, Julie Langan, Sandra Tallada, Linda Gordon and Linda Steele.

When the class is completed the girls must submit a written report of their observations during the day.

Teacher of the playtime school is Mrs. Ruth Werkheiser.

Monroe Drive For Lafayette To Begin

EASTON — The Monroe County phase of an Easton area campaign seeking $400,000 for Lafayette College will be launched at a seven p.m. dinner-meeting Wedensday, May 27 in the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Stroudsburg.

George T. Mensch Jr. of Stroudsburg is chairman of the Monroe area campaign. Speakers at the kick-off meeting will be Cyrus S. Fleck Jr., assistant director of development at Lafayete, and Howard R. Braren, who is assisting the college's campaign effort.

Working with Mr. Mensch in the Monroe County phase of the drive are these other Stroudsburg residents: Montgomery F. Crowe, Forrest L. Graves, James W. Kovarick Jr., Dr. Marshall R. Metzgar, Dr. Thomas I. Metzgar, Gorman Roof and Clyde H. Wallingford.

Others from the county involved as campaign workers include Harold Croasdale of Delaware Water Gap, William D. Gross of Pocono Pines, and Dr. James G. Kitchen II of Pocono Lake.

The Easton area campaign is the first of more than 20 regional efforts that the college will conduct between now and mid-1966. The Ford Foundation last June challenged Lafayette to raise five million dollars and guaranteed to award it an additional two million if it met the challenge by June 30, 1966.

Close to two million dollars has been received in the nationwide campaign. New contributions to the Easton area campaign reported Friday (May 22) at a Hotel Easton meeting of solicitors advanced a $260,793 total announced last Tuesday (May 19) to $282,691, about 70 percent of the goal.

The national campaign is part of a long-range development program effort to obtain 17 to 18 million dollars for increased faculty salaries, student aid, and academic and physical improvements.

Lafayette is one of only seven privately supported colleges for men awarded challenge grants under the Ford Foundation's special program in education since the first awards were made in 1961.

Just Between Us——

by Bobby Westbrook

There's a first for everything, and yesterday was the first time I ever got a telephone call from a dragonfly. Remember that helicopter that came skimming up the river like a dragonfly with red eyes?

The description must have been an accurate one because Capt. Ivorson who piloted it up from Lakehurst for Armed Forces Week recognized his baby. It's the only one of its kind and they call it "The Guppy". You could have seen it yesterday afternoon, and you must have heard it as it passed over town on its way home.

As for what it was doing at the river last week; it was ad*miring the view, an enthusiasm* I share. As refreshing as the river after a hot day in town, that's anytime you come in contact with Eloise Bryan, who is one of the most quotable people I've ever known.

A retirement dinner couldn't possibly be a solemn affair when it was her retirement, because, while she may retire from one specific job she'll never retire from living life to the full. "We haven't always agreed with her," said one speaker, "but nine times out of ten we've had to admit she was right all along."

"Of course we've disagreed, and that's good. Why, I wouldn't give a man house room who agreed with me about everything," said Miss Bryan, bringing down the house.

Everybody had some quote from Miss Bryan they'll never forget, but the one I think all parents will appreciate is the advice she gave a fellow teacher whose child was just three years old: "You start right now winning from that child at least once a day. You don't have to win them all, but you'd better make it a habit to win, right or wrong, at least one of the day's battles." I've known speakers to talk all night and say less.

Recipes For Graduation, End-Of-School Parties

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg — Although it doesn't seem possible, summer will soon be here. End of the year parties, graduation parties, bridal showers, etc., are in the midst of being organized, and primary on the planning list is food to be served. Chances are you're looking for something to prepare that can allow you to entertain with ease, and a sandwich loaf may be your answer for it is so tasty that both young people and adults like it.

Unsliced loaves can be purchased from the bakery and it's wise to check to see if it must be ordered in advance. Bread, you know, freezes perfectly, so you can buy it a couple of weeks ahead of time —so you don't forget to get it!

Party Sandwich Loaf

Trim crusts from an unsliced 1½ pound bread loaf. Cut in 4 lengthwise slices. Butter slices. Spread bottom slice with luncheon meat filling made by grinding 1 can (12 ozs.) luncheon meat and mixing with 2 tablespoons pickle relish and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.

Spread second slice of bread with a mixture of:

4 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 teaspoons finely chopped onion
¼ cup mayonnaise

Spread third slice of bread with one-half of cooked meat filling made by mixing together:

½ cup ground cooked meat
2 tablespoons finely chopped ripe olives
¼ cup minced celery
2 tablespoons minced onion
¼ cup mayonnaise

Place 1 thinly sliced peeled tomato over filling. Top with remaining meat filling and fourth slice. Wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator for several hours or over night.

Place loaf on serving tray. Spread top with 2 cans (2½ oz. each) of deviled ham.

Frost sides with 12 ounces of cream cheese, softened with cream to spreading consistency, and decorate top with cheese fluted through a pastry tube. Garnish with olives. Makes 12 to 14 servings.

Punch goes nicely with a sandwich loaf. This one has a nice zing to it and it's pretty. In fact, if you're not going to make it soon, stick the recipe in your Christmas file because it's a holiday red color.

Spring Punch

¾ cup sugar
½ cup boiling water
1 1-pint bottle cranberry juice cocktail
1 cup orange juice
½ cup lemon juice, fresh, frozen or canned
2 7-oz. bottles (1¾ cups) ginger ale, chilled

Add sugar to water, stirring to dissolve. Add fruit juices. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, add ginger ale. Garnish with notched orange slices, each topped with a fresh cranberry (when available). Makes 1½ quarts, about 8 servings.

The punch recipe can, of course, be doubled or tripled for a crowd. If you use a punch bowl, a ring mold of ice looks pretty in the bowl. In the bottom of a ring mold place whole strawberries or any available berry, then add two to three inches of water and place in freezer. When ready to serve punch, run hot water around outside of mold so that ice ring will fall out easily.

If you want to be experimental or extra fancy, use flowers, as pansies, or ivy leaves and decorate ice mold as prettily as you want to. You may find that it is best to freeze a thin layer of ice on bottom of mold first before placing fruit in bottom. Flowers, of course, will rise to the top and then you invert frozen ice before putting in punch bowl.

Teenagers like finger foods. This unusual dessert might appeal to them, because they can walk around while they're enjoying it. I think it might also make a hit at a children's party, or even an informal outside barbecue or back-yard picnic.

Walk-Away Desserts

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 cup milk
1 can (8½ or 8¾ oz.) crushed pineapple (¾ cup)
1 package instant vanilla pudding
8 ice cream cone cups (flat bottoms)

Soften cheese to room temperature and use mixer (or blender) to gradually blend in ¼ cup milk. Add remaining milk and drained pineapple, then pudding (beat only 1 minute); chilling optional. Just before serving, spoon into cone cups placed in muffin tins for support. Makes 8 servings.

Do note that you use instant pudding in the above recipe; I'm afraid you'd have quite a mess if you mistakenly used the regular pudding mix that you use in this cooky recipe that would be nice for any kind of party. The recipe is easy enough for your daughter to follow, regardless of age!

Teen-Treats

1 package dark 'n' sweet chocolate pudding
2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
¾ cup soft margarine
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend all the ingredients with a fork. Shape into 1 inch balls; place 3 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. Flatten balls with a fork. Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool on baking sheets.

Miss Eloise Bryan Honored By Faculty On Retirement

Stroudsburg — "Don't try to make him walk in my footprints," Miss Eloise Bryan advised the elementary teachers of the Stroud Union School District at the testimonial dinner given in her honor Thursday night at the Greenview Guest Farm. Miss Bryan, who is retiring as school district psychologist at the end of the school year, was speaking of her successor, John Haddon.

"I have noticed that when the footprints I have made in the first snow to the bird feeder have frozen, I can't walk in them without danger of falling. Don't do that to John. It's his job, let him do it his way."

Thus in capsule, her brief speech of appreciation demonstrated many of the complimentary things they had been saying about her.

"Master of the metaphor," Roger Dunning, elementary supervisor, called her in paying tribute to her keen mind that can cut through non-essentials, the sparkle of her wit, her courage, and her steadfast faith.

"She has been of help to each one of us, not only as administrators and teachers and in dealing with the students, but personally, helping us to be better parents, better spouses, better people", he said.

The tributes were serious but the mood of the dinner was light, tied to the theme of her greatest hobby — birds. There were bird name cards for all the guests, and bird placecards at the speaker's table.

Her first gift, heralded by the shrill whistle of a white-coated Mess Enger, was a plastic bird cage, followed by two motheaten specimens of mounted birds, one of them headless; by a packet of bird seed. "Miss Bryan has had to keep working to support the birds"; and toy store binoculars.

More seriously meant were the gifts of an elaborate bird feeder of hand - cut stone and a lapel watch.

Ralph Harrison was toastmaster at the dinner, and presented her with an orchid corsage at the beginning of the party. Mrs. Dorcas Pyle representing the elementary teachers; Dr. Agnes Townsend representing the special services of the school district; and John Haddon, her successor, paid their tributes to her.

Musical tributes ranged from the solos of Miss Patricia Ungemach, "It's Almost Like Being In Love", "As Long as He Needs Me"; and "Love Makes the World Go Round", to The Beatles portrayed by Dorothy Deitrick, Jeanne Lim, Mary Gearhart and Bob Wolbert.

A chorus of teachers under the direction of Mrs. Leona Wilhoite sang "Tell Me Why" and "Michael, Row the Boat".

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Pete Wyckoff has threatened to sabotage our radio program. To be more specific, he threatened to sabotage the one of Thursday morning when we were to be broadcasting from our Second Floor Keystone Room. It seems, Pete does not feel 1050 bedspreads are half as important as straw handbags. He has several reasons, the principal one being that this is his first year as Handbag Buyer and he went haywire. He now owns straw handbags to the point that he's talking them . . . thinking them . . . dreaming them, and regretting he isn't a horse so he could eat any that don't sell!

Anyone who knows Pete knows his terrific gift for talking about everything in exaggerated fashion, and making you laugh. So, when he claims to have more straw handbags than Dick Kishpaugh ever had bedspreads or Carter ever had little liver pills, I'm sure he's jesting . . . but his mock despair at the prospects of unloading them all makes hilarious lunch-time listening. According to him, his stockrooms are bulging to the point he's on the verge of inaugurating a campaign for men to carry purses. He's even recommending that working males carry their lunch in some of the reed jobs that are shaped exactly like the lunch pails engineers carry.

Actually, while we do have a very complete and wonderful selection of summer handbags, I am sure we haven't any more than we will need to supply our customers. Many are known as "PVC" in trade, meaning that they are plastic vinyl coated. This coating does something quite admirable to reeds, making them look more durable as well as much more pretentious. After talking with Pete, I knew quite a bit more about handbags than before. Seems that the tiny round reeds are "core reeds" and the thready, very fine straws are Filipino, and most attractive . . . something a bit different for a change. The handbags of soft, strawlike crochet are Pontova. Pete tells me this is a synthetic . . . and it is very smart. We have it in clutch as well as handled styles, in neutrals as well as eye-filling shades of green cocoa, orange, etc.

Prices are as varied as styles and colors, begining at 2.98 with the greatest concentration being at the 5.00 level, and some truly superb bags at 10.98. For those who demand even beter than the best, we stock a few 15.00 straws that are capacious and smart with leather handle and trims.

Which reminds me of the woman who wrote into a newspaper fashion columnist to ask, "Is it better to buy a cheap bag and have some money in it, or spend all one's budget on an expensive bag?"

The answer was that any accessory should be just as expensive as one can afford because "accessories belittle or glamorize any basic costume you may be wearing." The truth is, the ideal state would be to have the most expensive handbag money could buy . . . with MORE MONEY IN IT!

Athletic Program At SU In Black

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Union High School athletic activities garnered more than $4,000 for the school during the past year with receipts totalling $16,346.02 and disbursements amounting to $12,099.74. Coaches' salaries were not included in the totals.

A recent report shows that the total balance on hand April 30 was $5,757.19. This represents $4,246.28 from this year, plus last year's balance of $1,510.91.

The breakdown shows that football accounted for nearly $11,000 in receipts while track was low with a total of $17.00. Football and basketball were the sports that accounted for the gain, all others being operated at a loss.

Exact receipts were: football, $10,775.76; basketball, $2,174.31; baseball, $33.11; girls' basketball, $93.00; track $17.00; wrestling, $752.84; and general miscellaneous, $2,500.00.

Disbursements were: football, $7,291.43; basketball, $1,772.15; baseball, $678.72; girls' basketball, $260.75; track, $563.45; wrestling, $1,332.93; rifle, $29.00 and general miscellaneous, $171.31.

The miscellaneous categories refer to a payment of $2,500 from the Stroud Union School District, and minor payments.

Main Source

Admissions provided the main source of receipts, primarily for games with arch rival East Stroudsburg. However, football gate receipts were generally quite high. The other major source of income was from insurance payments from the students involved in the sports —a total of $1,385.76.

Largest expenditures occurred for insurance, $1,353.00; equipment (new and reconditioned), $4,534.67; and doctor and hospital fees, $1,543.96.

All sports stayed well within their projected budgets, the figures being: football, $7,860.20; basketball, $2,132.70; girls' basketball, $710.00; wrestling, $1,669.00; track, $1,049.00; and baseball, $1,623.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Saturday, May 23, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Make it as easy for others to understand things and keep going as you would for yourself, and you will have unexpected and delightful cooperation. Strong, favorable planetary influences.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — You should receive many benefits and friendly assists as a result of past deeds. There are many opportunities now for those who are well trained in their lines and who make good use of their knowledge.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Search in all corners for forgotten, overlooked or seemingly "small" ideas and items that COULD, WITH your aid, be quite a help to day's program.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Give in a little, stretch a point to help someone over a hill or an obstacle and you will feel good besides gaining many credits.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Strike a good balance in all things; distinguish carefully between what's substantial and what's mere "glitter." The latter could prove disappointing. Weigh offerings before accepting.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Expect some obstacles, even set-backs, as you strive to increase potential. Continued effort eventually makes its own "breaks". Be calm, and you can handle unexpected situations astutely.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A good day for planning long - range programs. Venus, in auspicious position, promises advancement if you are your innately resourceful and ambitious self.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Awareness will ward off many problems. A vigorous schedule may not be necesary, but thoroughness and surefootedness are. Avoid high-rising emotion.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Realize the meaning of events; keep personal feelings OUT of dealings, decisions; you can think yourself into difficulty if you so incline.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Rejoin a worthwhile undertaking or activity if you feel it now holds the interest and benefits it did not before. Don't neglect routine tasks in a quest for something new, or different, however.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Be careful how you handle all personal affairs; there may be some tricky areas, some kinks to iron out before taking action. Position of Uranus indicates some conflict of interests.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Anything easily gained is seldom appreciated as much as the hard-earned. But don't reject a good offering because it has no foreseeable difficulties.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly intelligent but often puzzling, even to yourself. You grasp situations learning quickly, and if not strict with yourself, may become satisfied with superficial knowledge. You have talents for music, writing, promotion, originating better methods in practically any craft. You make quick - thinking politicians though you may not care for this field; can do many things well, and more than one at once; take it less strenuously and preserve health. PP & L Gives $618.80 Check To Pocono Vacation Bureau

R. E. Reppert, Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's Pocono manager, announced yesterday that the local utility company has presented a check in the amount of $618.80 to the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc.

This gift represents one-half of the organization's cost for its recent advertisement in the metropolitan newspapers designed to create wider recognition of the attractions awaiting visitors and tourists in the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau area.

In making the announcement, Mr. Reppert said, "The value of promotion such as this advertisement lies not alone in any tourism it might attract. It also helps establish the community and surrounding area as an interesting place to live and bring up a family, frequently a vital factor in influencing management's decision to locate in a particular area.

"An influx of such new industry is absolutely necessary to Central Eastern Pennsylvania if its future is to be a prosperous one. Similarly, PP&L's future growth is linked to the establishment of new customers in Central Eastern Pennsylvania. Since tourism can play an important part of the growth of the area and of the Company, we are glad to share the cost of such promotion."

Bangor Routs H-town, 18-1

BANGOR — The Slaters of Bangor, northern division champs of the Lehigh-Northampton League, bombasted visiting Hellertown, 18-1, in the season's finale for both clubs.

Bangor awaited the outcome of yesterday's Southern Lehigh-Parkland contest which would determine the southern division status. The Slaters will meet one of those teams next week in the start of the baseball playoffs.

Sherwood Heard hurled a nifty two-hitter and swatted one of the Bangor homers which overpowered the Panthers. The other circuit smashes were poled by Pete Speer, John Heard, Joe Ponnett and Roger Ackerman.

The Slaters scored in every inning except the fourth, pushing across two runs in the first, seven in the second and one in the third for a 10-0 lead after the first three rounds.

Behind such powerful hitting, Heard had no difficulty on the mound, striking out nine while issuing six walks.

Wilson Trims E-burg

EAST STROUDSBURG—Scoring all their runs in the first three innings, Wilson Borough yesterday trimmed East Stroudsburg, 6-3, in a Lehigh-Northampton League clash.

The loss gave the Cavaliers of Coach Jim Werkheiser a league record of 3-6-1. Overall, the Eastburgers stand at 3-6-2.

Wilson Borough scored a run in the top of the first on Ed Link's single and steal of second and an error which allowed him to cross the plate.

But Eastburg railled for a pair of markers in the bottom half of the opening round on Monty Perfetti's bases-loaded single. The Cavaliers soaked the sacks when Ray Gallagher and Bill Reese walked and Deihl singled.

But the Warriors tied it in the second with another single marker on a double error and a hit. In the third, Wilson sewed it up with four runs on four singles, a walk and a double.

Singles by Reese and Ron Spinner accounted for the final run of the game in the bottom of the third.

Halas Seeks Trades

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — George Halas knows his Chicago Bears can't afford to stand pat so he is busy working on trades, juicing up his offense and trying to improve his defense.

It may come as a shock to learn that the owner-coach of the title-winning Bears hopes to tighten the rock-ribbed defense that stifled all enemy attacks last season.

"I know that we led the league in 10 of 19 defensive departments," said Halas at a break in the National Football League meetings. "But there will be 13 clubs shooting at our defense this year. We know and expect it. We almost know how they are going to try to break it, too.

Looks For A Deal

"We are talking with people and it could be that we will make a deal.

"Last year our simplified defense did a good job. But it needs further improvements. We hope to improve our offense, too."

When asked if he meant he was going to try for more than 12 points a game (actually, the Bears averaged 21½ last year), Halas smiled and said, "I'll settle for 12 points a game if our defense is good enough."

Monticello Raceway Opens Next Thursday

MONTICELLO, N. Y. — An estimated $1.5 million in purses will provide the spark for some of the finest harness racing ever when Monticello Raceway opens for its 99-night and four-matinee summer meet next Thursday.

Top quality racing will be the order of the day throughout the Sullivan County harness track's seventh season of operation.

Overnight purses, starting at $1,000 and working up to the weekly $5,000 open events for the top pacers and trotters on the grounds, will rank among the best offered in the country.

Bigger and Better

Fully expecting a bigger and better Monticello meet after last year's record - breaking schedule, horsemen were quick to register for stall space. Ed Parker, racing secretary at the Mighty M, was deluged with stall applications, which reached record proportions. The "No Vacancy" shingle had to be hung out early.

With the addition of two new barns over the winter, Monticello can accomodate 703 horses. And each one of the stalls is expected to be in use by the coming weekend.

Foreseeing the enthusiasm which carried the track to a banner 1963 meet, management has improved or expanded facilities in many departments for the upcoming season.

A new dining area, the plush General Sullivan Room, is nearing completion. Situated on the opposite end of the clubhouse from the Ichabod Crane Dining Terrace, the new room will have facilities for 250. Closed-circuit TV will be installed throughout.

Betting Windows

Patrons will also find a pair of "twists" at Monticello this year aimed directly at their convenience. Advance betting windows, currently in use only at Yonkers, will make their debut at the Sullivan County track along with an expanded racing program.

Pocono Mountain Wins Golf Match

MILFORD — Pocono Mountain registered its sixth golf victory in seven matches yesterday by scoring a 10-5 triumph over Delaware Valley at Cliff Park Country Club.

Other medalists for the winners were Wade Mikels 88, Alan Young 91, Barry Munch 93, and Jim DeSanto 89.

Auto Crash Kills Braves Bonus Boy

By JACK FEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Hummitzsch, Milwaukee - owned bonus player, died early Friday in an automobile accident just a few hours after pitching his finest game this season for the Austin Senators of the Texas League.

Walter Hriniak, 21, a second baseman for the Senators from Natick, Mass., a Class AA farm club of the Braves, suffered multiple injuries. His condition was reported as fair.

Hummitzsch, 23, a right-hander from Sheboygan, Wis., died when his new convertible left the road on a steep hill on the western edge of Austin, tore through four thick guard posts and overturned. He was pinned beneath the car. Hriniak was thrown clear.

The players apparently were returning from a fishing trip, the Austin manager, Buddy Hicks, said.

"A Keen Loss"

In Milwaukee, John McHale, the Braves president, said the club "feels a very keen personal loss in the death of Jerry. He was an outstanding boy in every way and was one of our finest prospects."

Hicks said last night's game in which Hummitzsch beat Fort Worth 1-0 in 10 innings, was his best this season. He allowed three hits, struck out nine and walked one, and scored the only run after hitting a double. That made his pitching record 3-2 and lowered his earned run average to 1.22.

Last year, the 6-foot-2 Hummitzsch was 10-9 with Austin, including a no-hit game against Tulsa.

He was signed by the Braves in 1961 for a substantial bonus off the Pueblo, Colo., Junior College campus.

Stock Streams

MT. POCONO — James Hazen, Monroe County fish warden, yesterday said the stocking of trout in area creeks is planned for next week.

Wednesday, May 27, Brodhead Creek will be stocked, and on Friday, May 29, the Bushkill Creek will be stocked.

Last Wednesday Goose Run Pond, Middle Branch of Brodheads Creek and Snow Hill Lake were stocked with trout.

Yanks Nip Angels

NEW YORK (AP) —Errors by Jim Fregosi and Billy Moran paved the way for three unearned runs, helping the New York Yankees to a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Friday night.

Fregosi, the Angels' shortstop dropped a throw from Joe Adcock in the third inning on an attempted force at second. Tom Tresh and Joe Pepitone then singled home one run each as New York took the lead 3-2.

Moran, at third, fumbled a sacrifice bunt in the fourth, which led to the Yankees' last run, Bobby Richardson's sacrifice fly scored Clete Boyer.

7th Straight Loss

The runs in the third came off starter Ken McBride, who suffered his seventh straight setback after winning opening day. The loss was the third straight for the Angels and their seventh in the last eight games.

Yankee starter Whitey Ford was forced out of the game after three innings because of a strained right hip. Ford originally hurt the hip in Cleveland May 9.

The Angels threatened in the ninth as Bobby Knoop singled and Ed Kirkpatrick doubled with none out. Hal Reniff got Tom Satriano on a ground out before Knoop scored on Albie Pearson's infield out. Reniff then retired Moran on a ground out.

Baseball's Rabbits Hinder Life Of Game, Says Veeck

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Veeck says he has nothing against rabbits. He'd just like to take them out of baseball.

This simple move, contends the outspoken ex-club owner, would put some heart in the pitchers and some life in the game. Both are needed, he thinks.

Veeck, who ran the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox in other days is about to make his debut as a television commentator. As always, he is expected to have some barbed comments to make on baseball.

The one-time Marine says the long ball is a prime reason baseball drags.

"Not Very Exciting"

"For 20 minutes of every hour of a game, the pitcher stands motionless on the mound, holding the ball," Veeck says. "Now that is not very exciting.

"The reason he stands out there holding the ball is that he's afraid to throw it—because all the batters swing from the heels and any pipsqueak can belt the ball over the wall. He knows his next pitch may be his last.

"That's the reason for so many 3-2 counts and walks and pitching changes — and slow games.

"The point is, this doesn't produce more scoring, which is what the lively ball crowd thinks people want. It just produces more runs, with less action in a longer game."

The Rabbie Ball

Veeck claims that more than half the runs scored in the American League last year were scored on homers, mainly because of the lively, or rabbit ball.

"Now think about the consequences," he says. "Years ago teams were scoring just about as many runs as they do now, but with less than half as many homers. The few big sluggers hit them, the rest of the hitters didn't."

Actually, statistics bear out Veeck's contention, although exact records on how many men are on base when a homer is hit would be difficult to compile.

1,489 Homers

Assuming an average of one man on base, the 1,489 home runs hit in the American League last year would have produced almost 3,000 runs. There were 6,599 runs scored.

In 1927, when Babe Ruth hit his 60, there were 6,094 runs scored and only 439 homers. The homers would have produced only about 1,000 runs.

Even though there were two more teams in 1963 than in 1927, the total of runs was not much larger, but the homer total was much more than three times as large.

Knights Lose Finale

NAZARETH — The Green Knights of Pen Argyl suffered their 10th loss in their season finale yesterday, bowing to Nazareth, 6-0.

Glenn Engler tossed a three-hitter at the losers while Nazareth built up a 5-0 cushion in the first frame and was never headed.

Pen Argyl's Ray Nottle got the only extra-base blow of the game, a double. Bob Hoch and John McMasters collected the only other safeties off Engler.

Bob Sheesely, starting hurler for the Knights, was racked for four hits while yielding three basese on balls which accounted for the five runs at the start.

McMasters came on in relief, and allowed but four hits and one run the rest of the way.

The Knights completed the season with an overall record of 4-10, and a mark of 4-6 in the league.

No Expansion For AFL -- Yet

Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The American Football League decided Friday to delay expansion until at least 1966 and named a committee to screen an expected 20 pplicants.

Joe Foss, AFL commissioner, said the expansion committee, headed by Lamar Hunt, Kansas City owner, will submit questionnaires in the next few weeks to all interested parties.

Foss said 20 groups, including 34 individuals from more than a dozen cites, have expressed interest in joining the league.

Foss explained a team could be voted into the league in 1965 but definitely wouldn't field a team until 1966.

The most aggressive men seeking AFL franchises are Dave Dixon of New Orleans and Nash Dowdle of Chicago.

Foss said other cities publicly expressing interest are Atlanta, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Montreal, Toronto and Louisville. He said a few other cities are interested but have asked that their interest not be publicized.

The league defeated a proposal to increase the squad limit from 34 players to 40, and appointed a committee to study Dixon's proposal to play the AFL All-Star game in New Orleans. No action was taken on Dixon's idea for a three-game AFL play-off.

Dixon said his proposals for the three-game title playoff and All-Star game in New Orleans "were received with enthusiasm by at least some of the AFL owners."

Lamar Hunt, Kansas City owner, made the proposal for a 40-man squad including six men on a development squad under separate contracts. Unanimous approval was needed. The 34-man limit with a taxi squad of five or six free agents will continue in force.

Foss said a committee was appointed to study a proposal by the Canadian Football League for an All-Star game with the AFL.

Foss was given a new three-year contract at a raise in pay. He received more than $40,000 a year under the old pact.

Bill Sullivan, president of the Boston Patriots and AFL president, said the five-year pact Foss was given in January 1962 was torn up.

Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner, also received a pay hike.

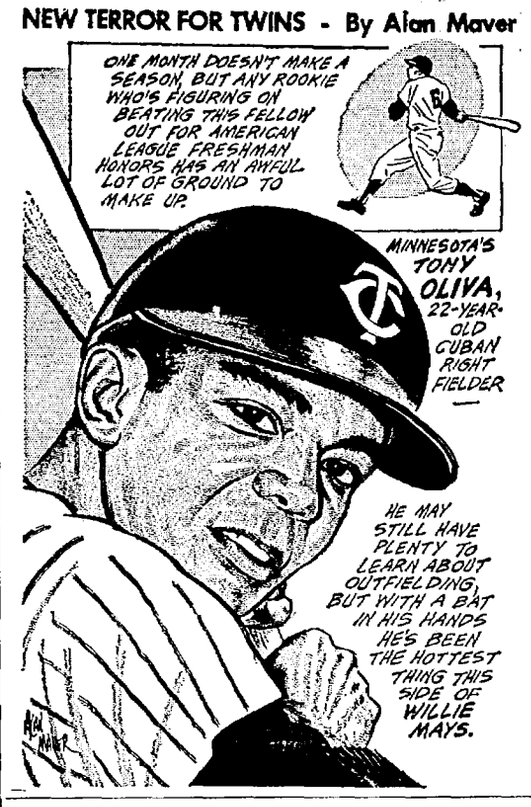
NEW TERROR FOR TWINS - By Alan Maver



Showdown Due After Olympics

By JERRY LISKA

WEVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—The Big Ten became the first conference to take action Friday for an expected post - Olympic showdown between the National AAU and the NCAA-backed national sports federations.

*The conference, in a joint ses*sion of faculty representatives and athletic directors, voted to declare ineligible any athlete who participates in non-federation sanctioned competition, beginning next year.

This thrust at the AAU is timed to become effective after the termination of the MacArthur Agreement on Nov. 1. The agreement in the AAU-NCAA feud, intended to bolster the American athletic forces for the Olympics at Tokyo in October, was hammered out by the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Commissioner Bill Reed explained that the Big Ten, which consistently has backed the federation movement, decided on Friday's official legislation to make firmer its stand against the AAU.

Draw Battlelines

Reed also disclosed that the battle lines really will be drawn for a showdown with the AAU at the meeting of a group of more than 25 college athletic conferences at Denver July 20-21. The Big Ten will send a three-member delegation to the Denver meeting, at which the main item will be discussion of post-Olympic policies in the federation movement.

The jurisdictional dispute is centered in track, basketball, gymnastics and baseball.

Reed said that Big Ten officials believe that the AAU has failed in the "fundamental objective" of providing a "proper and democratic" development of college and high school talent for national and international competition.

Beth Brown Tops Males In Tennis

GORHAM, Maine (AP)—Beth Brown, Gorham State Teachers College's controversial coed tennis player, has turned in a perfect season against her male rivals.

The 20-year-old sophomore won all three of her singles matches and teamed up in two victories in doubles.

The season ended for Beth Thursday as Gorham defeated Nasson College 6-2.

Gorham had hoped to use Beth in all of its matches this year, but a pre-season poll of athletic directors in the New England State College Athletic Conference ruled her ineligible for league play. Thus she played only in the Hilltoppers' three nonconference encounter.

Stroud Union Seeks Perfect Season Mark

STROUDSBURG —Stroud* Union High School, which seeks to complete its first undefeated season in history today when the Mountaineers battle East Stroudsburg, will enter the District 11 playoffs next Friday.

Currently sporting an 11-0 record, the champs of the Lehigh Valley League close out their regular season with the 2:30 p.m. meeting today against their inter-borough rivals at the East-burg playground.

Stroud Union will play the winner of the Lehigh-Northampton League in the first district playoff. Bangor is winner of the northern division of that circuit and will play either Southern Lehigh or Parkland next week to determine the league championship.

The winner of next Friday's playoff between the LVL and the L-N champs will meet the winner of the East Penn League June 2.

District finals start June 6.

Syracuse sophomore Dave Bing scored 41 points in a backsetball scrimmage against Holy Cross recently. He is 6-feet-3 and comes from Washington, D.C.

Rocky's 12th HR Tops Bosox, 4-3

BOSTON (AP) — Rocky Colavito's 12th home run—a towering drive with two men on—lifted Kansas City to a 4-3 victory over Boston Friday night.

The drive, which erased a 2-1 Red Sox lead, enabled the A's to snap a six-game losing streak. It was also only the sec*ond loss in the last seven starts* for Boston.

Winning pitcher Orlando Pena needed 2 1-3 innings of relief from John Wyatt, making his 16th appearance.

Colavito greeted Earl Wilson's first pitch in the sixth inning after two singles and a force. The homer put Colavito seven games ahead of his 1961 pace when he hit his 12th in game No. 40. That was the year Colavito set his personal career season's high of 45 homers.

Mustard—Unlike Mets—On Top

Baloney Ripe For Stengel

By MELVIN DURSLAG

LOS ANGELES — Casey Stengel had hurried from a board meeting at his Glendale bank and he sat in the Dodger Stadium clubhouse, snapping at a baloney sandwich.

A visitor obsered that such cuisine hardly befits a man of Casey's affluence and station in the world of finance.

He grumbled, "This is probably better than something you'd pay $8 for."

A simple truth often overlooked in everyday appraisals of Stengel is the remarkable state of his health. Casey is a brute, one with a constitution stronger than that of many men 30 years younger.

Asked about his physical condition, he responded tartly, "Don't worry about me. I'm here every day and I'm eatin'."

Indeed, he was eatin' a baloney sandwich with mustard, and you prayed silently that it would let him reach 74 on July 30.

Now the telephone rang. It was long distance for Casey from Chicago.

"Sure as hell, someone wants me to go on TV," he muttered.

He picked up the phone. "I'm 73 years old," he answered sharply to a caller, who apparently asked him to attend a dinner. "I can't be carryin' on socially during the season."

Casey listened a moment. "I'm not speakin' anywhere," he roared. "In fact, I should be out on the bench now instead of speakin' to you."

Among those traveling in the New York Mets complement, Stengel is perhaps the only one who gets the least bit testy. The others smile and respond warmly to the thinnest cordialities, as if they had entered the state illegally and are ecstatic at the prospect of any kindness.

The Mets are like puppies romping on shredded paper in a pet store window. Just as Stengel is assuring sidewalk viewers that every pup is housebroken, one has an accident.

The other night, for instance, prior to the Mets' first appearance in Los Angeles this year, Casey was pointing proudly to the vast improvement of his team.

The first Dodger at bat walked. The second was hit by a pitch. The two runners then pulled a double steal. One scored on an infield out — and the other on a wild pitch. Thus, the Mets had given up two runs on no hits.

Stengel takes a proprietary interest in home attendance of the team, crowing repeatedly, and with visible feeling, that the Mets are currently outdrawing the Yankees. He explains attendance on a first person basis.

"I drew over a million last year," he said, "and had an old park and no World's Fair. This year, there's no reason I shouldn't do better than the Yankees.

"We have a new stadium where you don't get sick climbin' up stairs. You don't have no heart attacks so that you have to make out your will before you come see us play.

"I'll have you know I'm drawin' people from jolly old England. They're flying tapes of our games back there and showing 'em to all those soccer fans. I'm very big in London."

"Maybe you'll be asked to go back and manage a cricket team," he said.

"I haven't got time," he answered. "Those things take four days sometimes before they get the side out."

Of course, the Mets don't always do it much faster, but Casey insists that his pitching is infinitely better than previously.

"Other teams explain it another way," says Stengel. "When we beat them, they say, 'This club ain't hittin'.' It's a coincidence they never hit when we get good pitchin'."

Stengel is undisturbed that players traded by the Mets to other teams should react with such pure rapture and offer thanks aloud for their deliverance.

"I'll have you know that a lot of young players are happy to be with us," says Casey. "If they're with another club, it takes 'em six or eight years before they can even play.

"Each spring at the Dodger camp, the writers ask, "When's someone gonna get Gilliam's job?' And at the end of the year, he's still there. With us, a young fella gets a chance to make good right away."

When the name of Duke Snider was mentioned as one of the happy Mets to scale the wall, Casey's face darkened.

"He ain't playin' where he is," snapped Stengel. "He's too old."

Like the other young men, Casey is glad to be where he is.

Cards To Fly Away?

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A St. Louis football Cardinals official have indicated the National Football League team would move to another city unless a satisfactory agreement is reached over a lease for the new downtown stadium.

"We're very hopeful about getting together over our lease disagreements—we've made a lot of progress in the last month—but some items in the lease have to be changed," Vice President Bill Bidwill said.

"Atlanta had made one fine proposal and they're putting up their stadium to be ready next year," Bidwell added.

Sign Contract

The contract for construction of the new St. Louis riverfront stadium was signed Thursday. Completion is set about May 1, 1966, in time for the 1966 baseball season.

The Cardinals have not signed the binding 30-year lease, Bidwill said.

He said he and his brother Charles (Stormy) Bidwill, president of the club, preferred to stay in St. Louis.

"But when you're asked to sign a 30-year lease," Bill Bidwell said, "you've got to be very careful with the language of the lease."

Hot Prospect For Baseball

By FRANK CREPEAU

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Rick Reichardt of Wisconsin is belting Big Ten pitching for a lusty .524 average. But some of the best pitches he's had lately have come from major league scouts who consider him the hottest prospect in college baseball.

The big, right-handed slugger has three more games this season in his bid to become the first player to win two straight conference batting titles. He won last year as a sophomore with a .429 average.

Serious Consideration

After the season, Reichardt will begin serious consideration of a big league career. His schedule for late June calls for trips to New York, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

Last weekend the baseball brass on hand got a look at how the 6-foot-3, 215-pounder hits as Wisconsin swept a doubleheader from Illinois.

The 21-year-old center fielder hammered two home runs and a single in the first game and came back with another homer and a single in the second game. He also stole home.

Hitting At .463

The day's work gave him 22 hits in 42 at bats, with three home runs, in Big Ten play. Over-all, Reichardt has a .463 batting average with eight home runs, 19 runs batted in and 18 stolen bases.

Milt Bruhn, the Wisconsin football coach, is hoping Reichardt will forego professional baseball for another year. At halfback last year, Reichardt led the Big Ten in pass receiving with 26 for 383 yards.

"I honestly haven't made up my mind yet what I'll do."

BANGOR — A total of 250 Bangor Area High School athletes were honored at the annual all-sports dinner this week.

Guest speaker for the event was Jack Wallesea of Easton, former American League baseball player with the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox.

Introduced by Armon M. Williams, junior high school guidance counselor who served as master of ceremonies, Wallesea emphasized the great value of an education and its strong relationship to athletics.

He reminded the students that character is one of the most valuable assets a person might have and in the "big time" an athlete needs this with his ability.

Members of the committee on arrangements present were Albert Ronca, Bernard Reimer and Charles Williams, all members of the Area School Committee. Also introduced were Frank Butz, W. John Heard, Robert Hamill, Joseph Emerick, and Raymond Scott, all board members; David Thomas, assistant high school principal; Arnold F. Wynne, senior high counselor and Dr. R. W. Dark Selects Mays Captain

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Willie Mays was named captain of the San Francisco Giants Thursday by Manager Alvin Dark, who captained the club from 1950 to 1956 and became its manager in 1961.

"I've thought about naming Mays captain for a long time," said Dark. "He's as deserving a man to be given high honors as anyone I know."

Actually the star outfielder's duties as captain will be little different from the job he has been doing in an unofficial capacity.

He'll direct the other outfielders and also act as liaison man between the team and manager. In addition, he'll deliver the Giant line-ups to the umpires before each game.

The Giants have not had a captain since Dark was traded in 1956.

Lawns are eager growers reaching out for more living space, encroaching on pavements. They can be kept neatly trimmed with turf edger. This sharp edged garden tool makes the green thumbers' tasks simple.

For turning over soil before planting the gardener needs a spading fork which makes the job easier and quicker. This garden tool is especially effective where the soil is stony or hard packed.

George "Doc" Abraham's popular column, "The Green Thumb" will now be published in this section every Saturday morning.

The Green Thumb

By George Abraham

GERANIUMS — This is the time of year I receive many letters asking why the leaves of newly planted geraniums turn yellow. Yellowing can be due to three causes: (1) Many commercial geranium plants are infected with bacterial blight (in spite of efforts to keep plants disease-free). This disease exhibits symptoms under hot, bright conditions, and often shows up just after planting in the garden or porch box. This is not the greenhouse man's fault because just about all commercial stocks contain a certain amount of this disease. (2) The second cause, especially when plants are set in urns or window boxes, is over - fertilization. Remember, there's a small volume of soil into which the plants are placed, so go easy on dry fertilization. Liquid feeding is easiest and safest. If you feel you've overfed, water the boxes or pots 2 to 3 times to leach the salts out and the foliage will green up, with new growth developing shortly. (3) Failure to water geraniums in a sunny spot will result in their wilting and loss of weaker leaves. These leaves will yellow before they die.

Geraniums like plenty of water for best growth. If you find your plants make leggy growth, cut the top back 3 or 4 inches and they'll bush out.

MULCHES: A summer mulch has three main purposes: Keep weeds down, water in, and improve the appearance of soil near your plants. There are many good mulch materials. Use the ones that's cheaper, more readily available and easier to use. For the next few weeks we'll talk about mulches readers have asked about. Today's item deals with buckwheat hulls. These are light, clean and have no dirty habit. They don't mat or freeze, may have an occasional buckwheat sprout (nothing serious). Some gardeners say they tend to blow away in windy locations. If sprinkled, they'll, stay put. Sometimes they mold, but it's not objectionable. Next week: Coca bean shells.

RABBITS AND TULIPS: A reader writes: "We found a way to keep our tulips and other plants from rabbits. We have a squirrel in the cherry tree, stealing the bird seed from the feeding station. A rabbit beneath, eats seeds the squirrels spill, and in that way leaves the tulips alone."

Another reader says. "Moth flakes on the tulip bed keeps rabbits out. For dogs, scatter red pepper near the row." Another says: "A cat is the best answer for rabbits or squirrels." Still another writes: "Scatter some dried blood meal (garden stores handle it) around plants and you won't have any rabbits." One reader uses a can of cigar and cigarette butts soaked in water. The can is placed in the middle of the tulip patch. Any more ideas on rabbits and squirrels? Please send them along.

SAWDUST AGAIN: Several readers have asked if sawdust is responsible for poor yield of strawberries and red raspberries. Sawdust, if you can get it, makes a good mulch, and I wouldn't hesitate to use it. Tests conducted in Canada for seven years show that sawdust mulch gives the greatest yield of berries at the lowest cost. Three systems were used: Clean cultivation (no mulch); use of straw as a mulch, and third, using a six-inch covering of sawdust around the base of raspberry canes. The sawdust trials showed an increase of about 30 per cent of berries over the other two methods. So, raspberry growers should use a mulch of straw or sawdust rather than no mulch (bare cultivation) to check weeds and conserve moisture.

It makes no difference if the sawdust is from hardwood or softwood, whether it's weathered or unweathered. Some believe that sawdust from walnut trees is bad to use, but with walnut trees as scarce as they are, you aren't apt to get much sawdust from them.

SMOKE BUSH: This old favorite of country gardens always catches the eye. While a rather bold, coarse shrub, it is striking because the bush is shrouded in a mist of grayish-purple, puffs of flowers and fruit which resemble smoke from a distance, hence the name "smoke - bush". The Royal Purple is noted for its billowing, feathery cloud - like flowers in summer, and in autumn the leaves take on a striking purplish - red tint. It does best in full sun and as far as the soil is concerned, it's not too fussy. We've seen them grow in stony soils in cemeteries, where if left alone they flower almost annual.

If your smoke bush does not smoke, you can blame it on two reasons: There's a blight which causes the flowers to wither or dry up. Dusting or spraying with captan will help. Also, the sexes are separate on some plants, and hence no blooms. In many cases, a single Smoke bush will "smoke" by itself, without the benefit of a nearby smoke tree. Trim out any dead wood you see in yours, as winters are apt to kill off a few branches.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Canadensis: "Our Japanese Maple came through the winter very well. However, we notice that the young leaves have developed a blight of some sort. Please tell me what can be done to stop it."

This handsome tree can be more or less finicky, but still it's worth growing. Your problem is not a blight, although the leaves resemble it. It's due to sun - scorching of young foliage. In the young stage, the leaf - edges and entire foliage is extremely tender. A hot, sunny, windy day will cause the new leaves to turn brown, creating the scorched or blighted effect.

Don't worry about this because the tree's growth hardens promptly and the dried up leaves blow away. You might find that during hot summer days the same thing will happen. Keep the tree well watered and you'll do a lot to prevent leaf - scorching.

Ever wonder about the change in coloring from bright red to olive - green, then back to bright red? This happens often with the Japanese Maple. Hot weather can turn the leaves green, and in early fall you'll often find the color changing back to a brighter red. Shade will also cause the foliage to take on a olive drab color. You get your best colors in the sun.

B. L. of Stroudsburg: "We have several ant hills in our front lawn, and each is full of ants. My husband poured boiling water into them, but still the ants come back. What's the best way to check them?"

Several methods have been used to get rid of ant hills in lawns. The simplest is to punch a few holes into the hill, then scatter some chlordane or dieldrin into the holes. It's also a good idea to scatter some powder on the surface. Some gardeners punch holes in the hills, pour in some formaldehyde, then place a plastic sheet over to confine the fumes. Others pour kerosene or gasoline into the openings, then place a plastic cover over the hill. Boiling water is not always effective, mainly because it cannot reach the ants deep in the hill.

Where ants are seen along the foundation wall of your house, try scattering some chlordane in the area. All they have to do is walk over it and they're licked.

D. E. of White Haven: "Last year we had the worst tomatoes we ever grew. The plants developed a disease in the middle of the season and the fruit wasn't fit to eat. Please tell me what can be done to have clean, edible fruit this year."

Tomatoes have a wide variety of diseases, but chances are yours had anthracnose a ripe rot of tomato fruit. First, it appears as small, slightly sunken, water-soaked, circular spots. These enlarge, become depressed and show concentric rings. The organism responsible lives two years in tomato trash in the soil.

"Another possibility is Early Blight (alternaria), causing target-like irregular, dark brown spots on stems. Severe infestation causes leaves to shed. Late blight produces brown, sunken, water-soaked lesions on fruit, and is a disease of cool, damp weather. Probably your tomatoes had one of the above diseases.

CONTROL: Keep your tomato vines healthy by dusting or spraying regularly, covering both top and bottom surfaces of leaves. Use Manzate (same as Maneb) starting when tomatoes are small (8 to 10 inches high) and repeat applications at 10-day intervals through harvest. This will prevent loss from early and late blight, gray leaf spot and Septoria, as well as anthracnose.

Nine Tools Needed By Gardeners

A gardener needs nine basic tools to attend his garden efficiently and enjoyably, reports a garden tool specialist from the Union Fork and Hoe Company.

For preparing the soil he requires a steel garden rake, garden spade and a hoe.

For sowing and planting, a four piece set of hand tools are necessary and should include a garden trowel, transplanting trowel, cultivator and a lawn weeder.

The addition of a turf edger and pruning shears for garden maintenance complete the basic equipment necessary. As the gardener becomes skilled he can add more specialized tools to his garden equipment.

Hedges With Personality

Hedges don't have to be drab and uninteresting walls of green. Properly selected and trimmed, they can add personality to the garden. Also, they needn't require constant care to keep them in order. Many plants will do with but one trimming a year.

Besides the customary privets and barberries, a wide array of shrubs can be used. Among these are Japanese quinces, viburnums, winged euonymus, lilacs, weigelas, hibiscus, honeysuckle, and various shrub roses, all of which will also be colorful with bloom in season. In warmer climates others may be added such as abelias, escallonias, Chinese hibiscus, and ixora (flame of the woods). And for a completely impenetrable hedge, you might try the hardy orange (Poncirus) which bears true orange blossoms, big thorns, and is hardy well up into New England and the Upper Middle West.

Trim Care

Where bloom is not taken into consideration, others are available such as elaeagnus, buckthorn, hornbeam, mulberry, beech, etc. In fact, one of the most interesting hedges is made up of various tree seedlings transplanted from the woods in no particular order. A once-a - year trimming is all that is needed to keep it a most attractive and tidy hedge.

If you have a leaning toward evergreens, have you ever given serious thought to pines, hemlocks, firs, or spruces? With one cutting a year (Spring or Summer) they make fine broad hedges. For the narrower ones consider the junipers in dryish places and arbor-vitae in damp. For low hedges, especially, the yews are particularly good, although some will eventually make quite tall hedges, if allowed to—and over many years.

Shaped Hedges

Or, how about the broad-leaved evergreens? The hollies, both large and small-leaved, make excellent hedges and can be shaped any way you desire. But, remember that if you want berries on the Christmas type hollies, be sure to include a few male plants in the group. Other good subjects are (particularly in the South) abelias, evergreen privet, camellias, sarcococca, podocarpus, pittosporum, myrtle, pyracantha, and the boxwoods.

Ground Covers Better In Hard To Mow Spots

For areas around trees, under eaves, and close towalls, where not planted with shrubs, ground covers can be beautiful and work - free, according to the American Association of Nurserymen. Ground covers do very well in shaded areas not particularly suitable for other plants.

On slopes, to control washing away of the soil, ground covers can be valuable plants. Flowering shrubs and ground covers planted together on slopes often can provide striking combinations. Where tree and shrub roots will compete for plant foods, it is best to work a generous amount of fertilizer and humus in the soil.

Most ground covers are planted as rooted cuttings. They not only are inexpensive, but grow into a permanent soil cover of rich green leaves. Some have flowers, such as vinca minor, or periwinkle. Hypericum flowers form a rich carpet. Ajuga, Ivy, Creeping Juniper, Pachysandra, Rock Cotoneaster, Winter Creeper, Sargent Juniper, Ice Plant and others make fine ground covers.

Consult with nurserymen to learn combinations of plants that serve for beauty, as well as to prevent soil erosion. Forsythia, for example, with Pachysandra, forms a striking combination when in flower.

Bangor Residents Protest Cut Sidewalks To Council

Complaints voiced by residents with properties bordering Market St. between 8th and 10th Sts. were aired at a special meeting of Bangor Borough Council this week.

Louis Farace, Mrs. Frank LeDonne Sr., Frank LeDonne, Alfred Orlando and Joseph Diorio appeared to protest the action of the contractor, Collins & Maxwell, Easton, in cutting 20 inches from their sidewalks without being given prior notice.

The group wanted to know who authorized cutting of the sidewalks and expressed concern over the conditions that could exist after new curbing was installed. It was pointed out that patching between the new curb and the old sidewalks may lead to seepage and setting and will mar appearances. Of prime interest, they indicated, is the question of responsibility for the condition of the sidewalks after the contractor has completed his work here.

About 13 inches of sidewalk adjacent to curbing will have to be replaced. The 26-inch cuts are needed to install forms for the 24-inch depth of the curbing as required by borough ordinance. The reconstructed highway will have a 10-inch base of concrete.

Council advised the complainants that it originally authorized replacing of 700 linear feet of curbing and that about 605 feet in the stretch from 4th to 8th Sts. has been cut.

It decided that the sidewalk and street committees, together with the borough engineer and a representative of Collins & Maxwell, will review the situation with the affected residents at 9 a.m. Saturday, visiting the sites involved. An effort will be made to reach a mutually agreeable solution, it was pointed out.

Mrs. LeDonne, in addition to her complaint about the sidewalks, entered an objection on the unsatisfactory response she received from one councilman when she requested that an investigation be made of the sidewalk situation. She said that the attitude encountered was disappointing.

Council also discussed the curb condition from the bridge on lower Market St. to the intersection with Main St. With macadamizing of the highway projected here, it will be necessary to raise the curbing several inches to avoid drainage problems.

RICOCHET — Car operated by Mrs. Catherine R. Vogt, 46, of 102 Jane St., Stroudsburg, came to a stop in the yard of Russell E. Ramsey, 302 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, this week after it ricocheted off the tree in the foreground and then the house.

COLUMBIA, N.J. — The fun and adventure of the out-of-doors will be a summertime experience for 800 Boy Scouts who attend Camp Waygadt, the outdoor training center of the Delaware Valley Area Council, Scouts of America.

More than 50 Boy Scout troops will use the facilities of the 1200 acre summer camp located at Columbia, N.J. from June 21 to Aug. 8.

As a part of the program of the Delaware Valley Area Council, a trained staff of 25 men and young men is provided in the fields of Scoutcraft, aquatics, and field sports. Several members of the camp staff have completed the intensive training program of the National Camping School, of the Boy Scouts of America.

"To a Boy Scout, summer camp is the greatest adventure that Scouting holds," said Bob Wilson, chairman of the council's camping and activities committee. Urges Closer Ties For College-HS

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. John C. Appel, Director of Liberal Arts at East Stroudsburg State College, was the keynote speaker at the first meeting of the Academic Consultation Committee of the Middle States Council for Social Studies in New York recently.

In his address, entitled "Liberal Arts and the Social Studies", Dr. Appel proposed closer coordination of the academic work of high schools and colleges. As high schools have been upgrading their studies and more students have been entering college it seems both necessary and desirable that there be more continuity of program, he declared.

It was Dr. Appel's recommendation that both high school and college should think of the last two years of high school and the first two years of college as constituting a coherent liberal arts program leading up to the professional or preprofessional education that usually begins in the Junior year of college education.

Dr. Appel proposed changes in the courses offered in grades 11 through 14, and urged more scholarly teaching and learning objectives for this academic program.

The presidency of Sigma Zeta was conferred upon Prof. Eden during the national conference held recently at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio, Texas. Sigma Zeta is an honorary society devoted to the encouragement and recognition of high scholarship in the fields of science and mathematics.

Having been granted a leave of absence from ESSC Prof. Eden will be in residence at Syracuse University for one year beginning September 1, 1964. The scholarship will enable him to pursue academic work in Radiation Biology and Nuclear Pysics.

Rotarians Told To Plan Fair Tour

"Plan your trip well ahead of time" Miss Betty Decker, of the Stroudsburg Bell Telephone Company, told members of the Pocono Mountains Rotary Club recently in an illustrated talk on the World's Fair. Miss Decker was presented by John Black, Club Secretary.

"It will take 96 hours, or twelve 8 hour days, to quickly tour all of the Fair's attractions" Miss Decker said. Miss Decker recommended to the men that they carefully select the particular areas of interest they most wanted to see — international, federal, industrial, transportation or amusement.

The Vatican exhibit with its famed Pieta and the Protestant Center were among the points of interest at the Fair, according to Miss Decker, who also mentioned the New York "Country Fair of Tomorrow" and the Festival of Gas exhibit as being among the exhibits of special interest.

"Displays from 45 nations, 300 companies and half of the American States make a visit to the Fair a worthwhile adventure" Miss Decker said.

The Rotary meeting was presided over by President Gene Rossi. Rev. John Roberts gave the invocation. Later in the meeting Dr. Williams Speaker, Barrett dentist, was inducted into the Rotary.

Students Lose In Fake Murder

READING — A fake murder acted out by Zane Pyhser of Bangor and five other Albright College students brought on social probation for the rest of the school year. The incident was staged as a shopping center in Muhlenberg Twp. in Berks County.

The college announced that it also has suspended the students' automobile privileges. The six students were arrested April 30 after one youth pretended to shoot another in front of hundreds of horrified shoppers.

The other youths dragged the "corpse" into a car and drove away. They were charged with disorderly conduct and fined $10 each.

State Gets Federal Construction

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee Friday approved $1,599,014,500 for military construction projects in the year beginning July 1. Part of the money will be spent for Pennsylvania installations.

The funding bill introduced in the House was nearly $280 million less than President Johnson's budget estimates but $13.1 million more than appropriated last year for military base expansions and family housing for military personnel.

The committee rejected new construction at some bases because of its expressed uncertainty that the military services are making maximum use of similar facilities already in existence.

As to the proposed commissaries, officers club, gymnasiums and bowling alleys at military bases, the committee said it could not accept them as being essential to the military posture of the country.

In all cases, the appropriation bill lacked funds for construction items previously deleted in the House-passed version of the military construction authorization bill still pending before the Senate Armed Services Committee and subject to further revision.

Pennsylvania items in the bill included:

Army: Carlisle Barracks, $5,244,000; Letterkenney Army Depot, $43,000.

Navy; Johnsville, $340,000; MCSA, Philadelphia, $2,800,000; Naval Supply Depot, Philadelphia, $668,000.

Air Force: Marietta Air Force Station, Lancaster, $273,000. Olmstead AFB, Middletown, $3,016,000.

Office Secretary of Defense: DSA Defense Clothing Textile and Supply Center, Philadelphia, $104,000.

Segregation Hit By Methodists

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)— An end to segregation in the Methodist Church, the possible removal of the Wyoming Conference from the jurisdiction of the Philadelphia area and an attack on the judicial council, were discussed this week by the delegates at the 113th annual conference of the Wyoming Annual Conference of the Methodist Church.

The discussion followed a report of G. Wesley Lewis, conference lay leader, on conference boundaries.

Lewis, who has been on the committee for boundaries for more than a decade, noted that the northeast jurisdiction increased numerically several years ago to the point where a seventh area can be added to the present six.

Lewis also noted that by 1968, the central jurisdiction, which is based purely on race — all Negro — and not on geography like the other five Methodist jurisdictions, would be disbanded. This means the end of segregation in the Methodist Church by 1968, and absorption of the Negro churches into the various existing conferences as they are located geographically throughout the United States.

Bishop Fred Pierce Corson, presiding bishop, Philadelphia area, who is presiding at the conference, said that conditions in Africa are such that bishops from the United States will probably never be assigned there again.

Blood Drive In Hamlin On Tuesday

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Share the joy of living. Give blood."

That's the theme of this year's bloodmobile visit to the Hamlin Methodist Church, when the people of Lake, Salem, Dreher, Greene, and Sterling Townships will join in giving blood on Tuesday, May 26, from 1:45 p.m. to 5:45 p.m.

Willis Gilpin, vice chairman of the Wayne County Branch of the American Red Cross, in announcing the bloodmobile visit to Hamlin, noted that this is the first time the unit will remain in that village. Usually, the visit goes to Newfoundland one year and to Lake Ariel the next.

He also noted that the people of Hamlin and Salem Township have been cooperative and generous in visiting the bloodmobile each year, and that this year, the people of Newfoundland and Lake Ariel will have the opportunity to reciprocate.

Sponsored by the VFW Post in Hamlin, the bloodmobile will accept donors up to 60 years of age who are in good health. Those from 18 to 21 years of age need parental consent, he said.

"Many people take this blood donor program too much for granted," Gilpin pointed out, "until someone in their family has the need for blood. Then they realize the value of the program."

Your Heart Won't Wear Out Unless You Allow It To Rust

By Alton Blakeslee

"Hard work never hurt a human heart."

So declares Dr. Paul Dudley White, eminent heart specialist who treated President Eisenhower during his heart attack, and who religiously follows his own advice by taking vigorous daily exercise.

Dr. White has powerful company in a growing legion of specialists and physicians who endorse regular exercise and physical activity as part of a general prescription to protect the heart and help prevent premature heart attacks and strokes.

Exercise provides much more than a way of spending calories to help control weight. Research has turned up increasing evidence as to WHY exercise may protect the human heart.

Man began as a physically active animal, the roving food gatherer, hunter, fisherman and farmer; through the ages he relied on his muscles and strength as well as his wits for survival.

But now, in civilized countries at least, seductive changes in our way of life have made many of us quite sedentary. Machines and gadgets do the work our muscles once performed.

Nowadays, "most of us don't wear out—we rust out," observes Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of New York City, a student of aging and dedicated tennis player at age 60. "But we are still stoking the human furnace as we did when muscle power made the world go round."

Inactivity has been encouraged by mythology about dangers of exercise, and by the appeal of humor — "The only exercise I get is as a pallbearer at the funerals of friends who exercise."

The myth that exercise kills is perpetuated because we occasionally read of men dropping dead on the golf or tennis court, or while shoveling snow. Overlooked is the fact that only about two per cent of heart attacks occur during strenous activity.

Fifty per cent actually occur during rest or sleep — which doesn't make sleeping dangerous.

Another myth is that exercise is useless because it makes you hungrier, so you eat more. Experiments and studies with man and animals repeatedly have shown that those with the lightest food intake are those who engage in moderate physical activity.

Another myth is that exercise is hopeless because you must walk 35 miles to lose one pound of fat.

But nobody insists you walk the 35 miles in a single day. Spread it out, walking one extra mile a day, and in 35 days you can burn up a pound of fat, or 10 pounds in a year. Did you eat, in one day, all the extra 3,500 calories represented by one pound of fat?

Still another myth is that men must slow down at 40. This really was the general medical advice and fashion years ago. Since then, medical science has advanced in its knowledge of the workings and needs of the human body, and what benefits might be gained from regular exercise.

When you exercise or work physically hard, your heart must work harder and more efficiently to distribute blood everywhere, including to its own muscular tissues. This helps develop what is known as collateral circulation — a richer, more extensive network of blood channels to assure a good supply to all areas of the heart muscle.

When a heart attack occurs from blockage of an artery, the heart tries to establish collateral circulation, actually growing new small blood vessels and capillaries to take blood to the deprived area.

The heart which has already been challenged by extra work or activity has, to an extent, already taken this step. It is already prepared to meet an emergency.

In England, bus drivers sitting behind their wheels were found to have a higher incidence of heart attacks than conductors running up and down steps on double - decker buses. When initial heart attacks did strike, the conductors were more likely to survive.

The same difference was noted in the postal service—a higher rate among sedentary clerks than among mailmen trudging their rounds.

Some studies of American workers have also found fewer attacks among men physically active on their jobs, as, for example, among farmers in North Dakota compared with non - farmers.

Among railroad men, clerks suffered death rates DOUBLE that of more active switchmen, or men working on maintenance of way.

In studies at Kent State University in Ohio, when men working in sedentary occupations were put through a program of regular exercises, their blood cholesterol levels declined. None of the men changed his diet in any way.

Some authorities think there is a beneficial effect from exercise in stimulating the thyroid gland, the "pacemaker" governing metabolism, so fats (and cholesterol) are burned up more speedily in the bloodstream. There is evidence that exercise helps the body dispose of fats consumed in foods.

Almost certainly, exercise and physical exertion can help us handle many mental stresses. Muscular work provides an outlet for the tensions that inevitably build up within us, and helps us relax physically and mentally.

In adult life, it is never too late to begin to improve over an existing poor physical condition. A thorough medical checkup is an essential first step, to learn what you can safely do.

Any program of improvement or restoration should of course begin slowly and mildly, building up to greater endurance ability. Once started, the activity should be continued, preferably daily.

The best activity or sport for you is a matter of preference, convenience, availability, and your physical condition.

One problem may be current social disbelief that you really want to exercise.

In exclusive Beverly Hills, Calif., a psychiatrist who likes to take a constitutional walk at night was repeatedly stopped by police alert for suspicious characters. He solved the difficulty by buying a dog to take along on his walks.

He wasn't bothered again, because everyone knows that a DOG needs exercise.

"I did attend the meeting of the party in the Stroud Twp. Municipal Building on N Fifth Street, Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Cox Science Fair Unit's Head

Doctor? Lawyer? Merchant? Already Bobbie's parents are planning for his future. They're saving to give him the best education obtainable, because they want him to be happy and successful . . . a son to be proud of.

It would be splendid if a good education automatically led to happiness and success, but unfortunately it doesn't. Many well-educated men and women have failed utterly when it came to living a stable and worthwhile life, because they lacked the strength of character that would have sustained them.

There is no better training ground for the building of character than the Christian Church. There children are encouraged to follow a way of life that will not fail them, and to respect themselves and their fellows.

Give your child every chance to succeed. Make sure that his education includes a thorough knowledge of the time-tested Christian truths.

ALL FOR THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH FOR ALL

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
